Gunman Slain, Hostages Freed In Bizarre Capers

NEW YORK (AP) — FBI agents shot and killed one alleged bank robber and captured his accomplice today at Kennedy airport as the pair prepared to board a private jet for a flight out of the country. Seven hostages had held for more than 14 hours were unharmed.

The gunmen, one a self-admitted homosexual demanding the release of his male "wife" from a mental ward, had robbed a Brooklyn branch of the Chase Manhattan bank of $29,000 Tuesday afternoon and then held the employees hostage when they were surprised by police.

The dead man was tentatively identified as Salvatore Natore, police said.

In a bizarre drama that stretched through the night, the gunmen negotiated with FBI agents and police on their demands for the plane and a car to take them to the airport. A two-engine Cessna jet was brought to the airport about 2:30 a.m.

At 3:40 a.m. a limousine pulled up in front of the one-story bank and the homosexual, John Wojtowicz, came out of the building with a rifle slung over his shoulder to search the car.

Body Is Found At Cincy Building

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Hamilton County coroner's office reported late Tuesday they still had no positive identification for the body of a man, believed to be from Lexington, Ky., found in the rear of a downtown building.

Police said the man had apparently been dead for several days.

The body was tentatively identified through papers in the man's wallet. No money was taken, police said.

Nixon, Agnew To Accept Nominations

GOP Sets Grand Finale Tonight

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A confident Richard Nixon, selected by cheering Republicans as their presidential nominee a record third time, is looking already to "the next four years" as a united GOP prepares to name Spiro T. Agnew once more as his running-mate.

Only the renomination of Agnew, expected to be unanimous in contrast to a floor fight four years ago, and the acceptance speeches of the two nominees remain tonight before the Republicans end their convention and set forth to do battle with the Democratic team of George McGovern and Sargent Shriver. Nixon emphasized in a pair of speeches here Tuesday, one upon his arrival at Miami International Airport, the other to some 8,000 young supporters within the hour of his convention triumph, that he intends to make a major pitch for the vote of young people in the fall campaign.

"We've got just as good a shot at it as the other side, and we're going to get it," the President told a rally in Miami Marine Stadium across Biscayne Bay from Convention Hall. Just a few minutes earlier, a cascade of red, white and blue balloons tumbled down upon delegates, spectators and marching Nixon supporters and others floated upwards towards the ceiling as vast Convention Hall broke into pandemonium following the 76-minute rite of nomination.

As expected, the roll-call vote stood at 1,347 for Nixon, one for Rep. Paul N. McCloskey of California. Rep. Manuel Lujan of New Mexico dutifully cast the one vote won by McCloskey in the state's primary.

An array of carefully selected speakers, spanning the party's ideological bridge from right to left, hailed the President in a smooth show of unity that contrasted sharply with the drawn-out displays of division that marked the Democratic selection of McGovern here last month.

Delegates from the more conservative, traditionally Republican smaller states, aided by the conservative California delegation, captured the convention's only major fight from large-state moderates, winning 910-434 approval for their plan to allocate delegates for the 1976 convention.

Brigid Shanley, a 26-year-old New Jersey delegate, said she would support a lawsuit against the plan. So did Senate GOP Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania and the liberal Ripon Society, which won a court test earlier this year against the party's current apportionment plan.

In the background was the first maneuvering toward the party's 1976 presidential nomination. Many of those who supported the plan that was adopted came from states likely to support Agnew, if he seeks the presidency four years hence.

The vice president, however, declined comment on the developments.

His press secretary, Victor Gold, termed "utterly erroneous" a copyright story in the Detroit News that Agnew agreed to run again for vice president only after receiving Nixon's assurance of support. (Continued on Page 10)

Circleville Native Killed In Columbus

Hildeburn (Dick) Martin, 72, a former resident of Circleville, was shot to death in his home in Columbus early Tuesday morning during a burglary.

Columbus police believe that the shooting took place around 11 a.m. Tuesday. His wife, Loretta, tried to phone him during her lunch hour but got no answer.

She then asked a neighbor to check on Martin and she discovered him dead. Police say the phone was off its cradle.

His body was found in a chair in the first floor dining room. Officers say he died of gunshot wounds to his right forehead, neck, stomach and left wrist, apparently by a .38 caliber pistol.

THE department said they could find no evidence of forced entry into the home, but noted that a 19 inch portable television set was missing.

He was a retired engineer at the State School for the Deaf.

Born June 26, 1900 in Circleville he was the son of William and Peri Hixenbaugh Martin.

His first wife, Ethel Martin, died Sept. 29, 1957.

Survivors include his widow, Mrs. Loretta Martin; three sons, Clark Martin, 352 Cedar Heights Road; Hildeburn Martin, retired Major of the Marine Corps, Santa Anna, Calif.; Stewart Martin, LaVerne, Tenn.; 10 grandchildren; two great-grandchildren; one sister Mrs. Bess Chaffin, Hilliard.

Services will be 10:30 a.m. Saturday at Defenbaugh Funeral Home. Burial will be in Forest Cemetery.

David Eisenhower Misses Seeing Nixon Nomination

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A summons by the Navy prohibited Lt. (J.G.) David Eisenhower from being on hand when his father-in-law, President Nixon, was renominated at the Republican National Convention.

A family spokesman said Tuesday that Eisenhower was called back to his station at the Mayport, Fla., Naval Station for an "administrative inspection" in connection with forthcoming sea duty.

The Navy's call forced Eisenhower to cancel an appearance at a GOP youth rally and attendance at the Tuesday night convention session at which Nixon was renominated.

The young officer is expected to be on hand tonight when Nixon makes his acceptance speech before the convention.

Republicans In State Of Election Euphoria

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
AP Political Writer

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The euphoria surrounding the 1972 Republican National Convention has probably been matched only twice in recent GOP history.

In 1956, it proved justified — as Dwight D. Eisenhower was re-elected in a landslide. But in 1948 it was a delusion and Harry S. Truman scored one of the greatest upsets in American political history, defeating Thomas E. Dewey.

The party is united now with the only visible rift here related to who takes over after Richard M. Nixon. A variety of polls show the Nixon-Spiro T. Agnew ticket with a massive — some say unbeatable — lead over the Democratic combination of Sen. George McGovern and Sargent Shriver.

Though Republican leaders keep saying they believe the margin will narrow before November, others aren't sure.

They recall that, in 1964, Republican nominee Barry Goldwater fell 30 points behind Lyndon B. Johnson in midsummer and stayed there.

Just six weeks ago, Democrats left this city's Convention Hall with considerable hope they could mend their divisions, and unite behind the McGovern candidacy. McGovern was confident he could hold the party regulars.

Since then, a series of mishaps has put a cloud over McGovern's prospects. In an unprecedented development, Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton of Missouri was dropped as he failed to disclose his medical history to McGovern.

A series of subsequent controversies have dogged McGovern and obscured his efforts at party unity and campaign organization.

The denial and subsequent admission of Pierre Salinger's inquiry into North Vietnamese peace intentions.

The likening of President Nixon to Hitler in attacks on the bugging and attempted break-in of Democratic headquarters at the Watergate complex in Washington.

And the comment that his election would probably prompt South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu to flee and turn over that country to a Communist-led coalition.

Even before the Democratic convention, he stirred controversy by saying he would go to Hanoi and beg, if necessary, to free captured U.S. prisoners.

Now, many polls show Nixon with top-heavy leads in the major industrial states which are crucial to Democratic success.

Other surveys show him with a remarkable row of advantages over McGovern in categories designed to measure the ways in which Americans regard the two rivals.

Though confident, many Republicans here are running scared. They are following the President's advice to guard against the kind of letdown that helped turn almost certain victory into the stunning Republican defeat of 1948.

Yet, for the Republicans and

Miami Beach Protests Heat Up

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — As Republican delegates renominated President Nixon, police skirmish lines swept streets surrounding Convention Hall to climax a day of protest marked by 216 arrests and several injuries.

Stepping up their militancy Tuesday, protesters harassed delegates, pounded cars, threw rocks and broke windows throughout the afternoon and into the night. A police lieutenant, a protester and two bystanders were injured.

Earlier, Vietnam veterans marched against the war and two Students for a Democratic Society crashed a Republican brunch attended by Mrs. Nixon and daughter Tricia Cox. The Zippies, an off-shoot of the Youth International Party (Yippies) demonstrated against world imperialism.

The Zippie march produced the first mass arrests of the convention season. It ended at an intersection in front of Convention Hall. When protesters refused to move, police herded 212 of them into yellow vans and rented trucks, charging most with disobeying a lawful police order.

Delegates arriving for the evening convention session were greeted by 3,500 anti-Nixon demonstrators strung out in the streets surrounding the 50-acre convention center compound.

The faces of many protesters were painted white, and hands of others dyed red. There were anti-Nixon posters, antiwar skirts and an elephant pulling a large black coffin.

Ranks of state troopers flooded into the streets when protesters began pushing and shoving the arriving Republicans, pounding on cars with fists and sticks and swarming into streets to block traffic.

With riot sticks held waist high, officers shoved and prodded the protesters down the streets. Four more persons were arrested for disorderly conduct, but the troopers clearly were more interested in moving people than arresting them.

About 400 police cleared three sides of the compound giving the demonstrators the street in front of the hall to carry on a program of rock music and speeches.

For the first time, police remained on the streets in force, lined up four deep to prevent protesters from spreading around the hall again.

The police cordon funneled the departing demonstrators back toward their Flamingo Park campground at 11 p.m. Four hours after they arrived. Few protesters remained when the delegates departed after renominating Nixon.

For all the action Tuesday, protest organizers kept insisting it was only a preview of what they plan tonight when Nixon comes to Convention Hall to accept the nomination.

President After Youth Vote; Says GOP Has Good Chance

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (AP) — While Republican delegates rejoiced, President Nixon sped out in avid pursuit of the volatile youth vote only moments after his renomination.

As the Miami Beach Convention Hall erupted in a meticulously planned "Nixon now" display after the formality of the nomination Tuesday night, the President drove to a nearby "youth for Nixon" rally to rev up his troops.

Although some concede the youth vote to the Democrats, Nixon declared:

"I don't think the youth vote is in anybody's pocket. It never will be. We've got just as good a shot at it as the other side. And we're gonna get it — with your help."

The Convention Hall quieted when television networks beamed the Nixon appearance into the hall and across the nation.

Many polls have suggested that Nixon's Democratic opponent, Sen. George McGovern, has an edge among young first-time voters, especially the 18- to 21 age group.

It was no accident that Nixon appeared at the Miami Marine Stadium, where the White House estimated some 8,000 young people had gathered for entertainment headlined by Sammy Davis Jr., a sometimes Democrat.

Arriving in Florida a few hours earlier, Nixon had been greeted at the airport by several thousand young people bused to join a few older folks like actor John Wayne. The area was sealed off from other would-be spectators.

"Based on what I have seen based on the reception that I see and feel here today, those who have predicted that the other side is going to win the young voters are simply wrong. We are going to win them," Nixon told the airport greeters.

Nixon had calmly watched his own renomination on television in the study of his home here on the shores of Biscayne Bay.

McGovern Denies Defense Cuts Would Weaken Nation

CHICAGO (AP) — Sen. George McGovern told the American Legion today that despite a campaign pledge to slash military spending, "no hostile power will succeed in threatening this country if I am president. No foreign power will push us around."

"We will always have sufficient power to resist attack, the threat of attack or diplomacy by blackmail," the Democratic presidential nominee told the Legionnaires.

McGovern, who has pledged to slash $32 billion from the current defense budget of more than $80 billion, said that even with those cuts "my budget would give us enough fire power to destroy Russia and China simultaneously 20 times over."

The South Dakota senator committed in remarks prepared for the Legion's national convention. President Nixon speaks before the Legion Thursday.

McGovern also plans to meet today with Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley, whose support is considered important if McGovern is to carry Illinois, a crucial swing state.

McGovern flew in to Chicago fresh from an effort to win the whole-hearted support of another old-line Democrat, former President Lyndon B. Johnson.

In his speech to the Legion, McGovern over and over reminded the veterans that he, too, had served in a war, as a bomber pilot in Europe during World War II.

"Everyone who ever served in the armed forces knows that our military spending is riddled with waste and inefficiency," McGovern said. "We need an invincible and invulnerable defense."

"But we also need to rein in the high-flying military spenders who think the sky is the limit."

Daley, who was barred along with his Cook County delegation from last month's McGovern-dominated Democratic National Convention, has said he endorses the Democrats' national ticket.

But Daley pointedly has refrained from a specific embrace of McGovern and has refused to say if he will work actively for McGovern and his vice presidential running mate, Sargent Shriver.

In a plane-side interview Tuesday night after arriving here from his get-together with Johnson in Texas, McGovern said he planned "just a friendly visit" with Daley.

They are to meet at Democratic headquarters at 2 p.m. EST.

"I didn't come here to tell him anything," McGovern said. "The mayor has graciously agreed to meet with me and we'll see what develops."

Newsmen and news photographers were barred from the meeting between McGovern and Johnson at the former President's LBJ ranch, 65 miles west of Austin. But a photographer provided by Johnson was on hand.

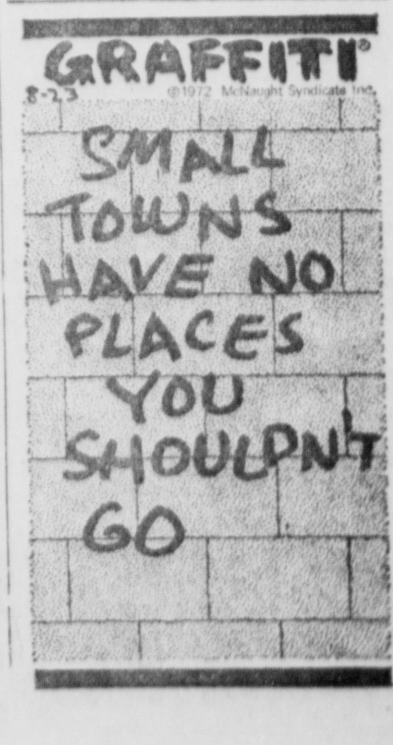

After the discussion of more than three hours, in which Shriver also took part, McGovern said, "We did tell him we hoped he'd do everything his time and energy and his position would permit" in the presidential campaign ahead.

The former President, McGovern added, "left that possibility open."

But McGovern said the meeting was friendly and would turn out to be one of the most helpful such meetings during the campaign.

Johnson, whose Vietnam policies provided the issue with which McGovern won the Democratic nomination, did not attend the Democratic convention in Miami Beach, Fla., last month.

McGovern Denies Defense Cuts Would Weaken Nation

CHICAGO (AP) — Sen. George McGovern told the American Legion today that despite a campaign pledge to slash military spending, "no hostile power will succeed in threatening this country if I am president. No foreign power will push us around."

"We will always have sufficient power to resist attack, the threat of attack or diplomacy by blackmail," the Democratic presidential nominee told the Legionnaires.

McGovern, who has pledged to slash $32 billion from the current defense budget of more than $80 billion, said that even with those cuts "my budget would give us enough fire power to destroy Russia and China simultaneously 20 times over."

The South Dakota senator committed in remarks prepared for the Legion's national convention. President Nixon speaks before the Legion Thursday.

McGovern also plans to meet today with Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley, whose support is considered important if McGovern is to carry Illinois, a crucial swing state.

McGovern flew in to Chicago fresh from an effort to win the whole-hearted support of another old-line Democrat, former President Lyndon B. Johnson.

In his speech to the Legion, McGovern over and over reminded the veterans that he, too, had served in a war, as a bomber pilot in Europe during World War II.

"Everyone who ever served in the armed forces knows that our military spending is riddled with waste and inefficiency," McGovern said. "We need an invincible and invulnerable defense."

"But we also need to rein in the high-flying military spenders who think the sky is the limit."

Daley, who was barred along with his Cook County delegation from last month's McGovern-dominated Democratic National Convention, has said he endorses the Democrats' national ticket.

But Daley pointedly has refrained from a specific embrace of McGovern and has refused to say if he will work actively for McGovern and his vice presidential running mate, Sargent Shriver.

In a plane-side interview Tuesday night after arriving here from his get-together with Johnson in Texas, McGovern said he planned "just a friendly visit" with Daley.

They are to meet at Democratic headquarters at 2 p.m. EST.

"I didn't come here to tell him anything," McGovern said. "The mayor has graciously agreed to meet with me and we'll see what develops."

Newsman and news photographers were barred from the meeting between McGovern and Johnson at the former President's LBJ ranch, 65 miles west of Austin. But a photograph provided by Johnson was on hand.

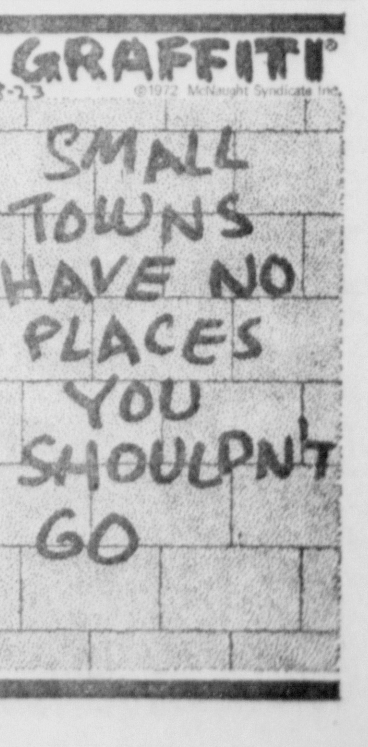

After the discussion of more than three hours, in which Shriver also took part, McGovern said, "We did tell him we hoped he'd do everything his time and energy and his position would permit" in the presidential campaign ahead.

The former President, McGovern added, "left that possibility open."

But McGovern said the meeting was friendly and would turn out to be one of the most helpful such meetings during the campaign.

Johnson, whose Vietnam policies provided the issue with which McGovern won the Democratic nomination, did not attend the Democratic convention in Miami Beach, Fla., last month.

The first load of high school students in the Laurelville area will be picked up at 6:45 a.m. Pick-up of students in kindergarten through grade 8 at Laurelville will begin at 8:15 a.m.

students attending kindergarten at Logan Elm. They will be:

1. the corner of Sioux Drive and Wyandot; 2. front of 2010 Sioux Drive; 3. front of 245 Sioux Drive;

Stop 4. front of 1960 Arapaho Drive; 5. front of 2035 Arapaho Drive; 6. front of 2070 Chippewa Drive; 7. front of 220 Pawnee Drive; 8. corner of Mohave Drive and Sioux Drive.

NEW hours have been set for school opening and closing this year. High school hours are from 8:10 a.m. to 3:01 p.m. These times also apply to the exchange school.

Washington, Salt Creek and Pickaway Twp. students will attend classes from 8:45 a.m. until 2:30 p.m. Classes at Laurelville begin at 9:30 a.m.

and dismiss at 3:20 each evening.

One hundred four students have enrolled for kindergarten classes at the Exchange building. They will be split into two morning classes from 8:10 until 10:55 and two afternoon classes running from 12:25 until 3:01.

Kindergarten students in Pickaway County will be provided two way transportation by bus according to schedule already arranged. Parents will be notified by letter as to their children's assignments prior to the start of classes Aug. 30.

District Superintendent John Henn announced that scheduling may be adjusted if parents desire to provide transportation for their youngsters.

Laurelville's kindergarten, one class only, will meet from 9:30 until noon and be delivered home by special bus. They will ride to the school on regular routed buses.

SINCE the first day of school will be a full day, the cafeteria will be operating. Lunches will cost 40 cents for students in grades 7 to 12 and 35 cents for those in grade 1 through 6. These prices are the same that were in effect last school year. The Exchange school and high school will each have three lunch periods under the new schedule arranged by Dow West and Roger Wolfe, principals.

At the session Monday of the Logan Elm school board, members issued a directive to all building principals and the superintendent to consistently enforce the dress code currently in effect for the district. The code reads:

The emphasis of the following dress standards is to develop habit of good grooming and cleanliness among the students of the Logan Elm School. The responsibility for achieving these habits is shared by students, parents, and the school.

Nonsensical, comic, doll or bizarre styles of clothing are not considered proper attire and will not be tolerated.

Dress and skirt lengths are to be reasonable and in good taste as adjudged by the administration. Last year's regulation set the length at four inches above the knee which did not allow for individual differences. Under the new regulation, the principal may determine the dress is not proper even if it only measures three inches or less above the knee.

The final decision of whether a student is well-groomed and neat in appearance rests with the judgment of the building principal.

AS IN the past, pant dresses and culottes are permitted as long as they do not give the appearance of shorts, which are not permitted during school hours. No "hot pants" are permitted.

Slacks may be worn as long as they are not too tight fitting. Boys' trousers must not be too tight or too short. Belts must be worn when loops are provided and shirt tails must always be tucked in except when designed for outside wear.

All students must wear shoes; boys are always to wear socks and only girls are to wear sandals. Sweatshirts with lettering or a design on them, T-shirts or undershirts are not to be worn to classes other than for physical education. Tank shirts are not permitted. "Hippie type" dress or hair style is out; boys hair must be off the collar, kept above the eyebrows, combed, clean, and not overly long. Girl-type hair should be worn by girls only.

Mustaches and/or beards are not allowed; neatly trimmed sideburns may extend to one inch below the bottom of the ear lobe — no further.

Violations of this dress code will lead to loss of privileges such as driving to school, attending school sponsored activities, dances, parties, football and basketball games, class plays, band concerts, etc.

Circleville Band Enters First State Fair Marching Contest

Thursday will be a first for the CHS Tiger Band as its members enter competition at the Ohio State Fair Marching Band Contest.

The band, directed by Gary Dean, will make their first attempt at victory in a state band contest competing with other schools having 700 or more students.

Tigerettes, majorettes, and colorguard will perform along with the band at their scheduled 11:15 a.m. marching time on the fairgrounds track. The unit has been granted four minutes to complete its competition routine.

Field commanders Jill Hoffman and Kathy Penn will set off the actual timing when they begin the fanfare which takes the first players across the starting line. A warning gun sounds a three minutes and a finish gun will be fired at four minutes. Rules offer a 25 point penalty per judge for any band failing to complete the show in four minutes.

THE fast-paced show the Tiger band is doing is exactly three minutes and 50 seconds in length, Dean noted and could be seriously hampered by a wet track.

Bands will be judged by outstanding college educators from Tennessee, Louisiana, Florida and Ohio.

Band fans who are attending are asked to gather and form a cheering section for the CHS musicians. With luck, the Circleville group may be among the 12 finalists picked to return in the afternoon for a playoff and presentation of ratings.

NEW hours have been set for school opening and closing this year. High school hours are from 8:10 a.m. to 3:01 p.m. These times also apply to the exchange school.

Washington, Saltcreek and Pickaway Twp. students will attend classes from 8:45 a.m. until 2:30 p.m. Classes at Laurelville begin at 9:30 a.m.

and dismiss at 3:20 each evening.

One hundred four students have enrolled for kindergarten classes at the Exchange building. They will be split into two morning classes from 8:10 until 10:55 and two afternoon classes running from 12:25 until 3:01.

Kindergarten students in Pickaway County will be provided two way transportation by bus according to schedule already arranged. Parents will be notified by letter as to their children's assignments prior to the start of classes Aug. 30.

District Superintendent John Henn announced that scheduling may be adjusted if parents desire to provide transportation for their youngsters.

Laurelville's kindergarten, one class only, will meet from 9:30 until noon and be delivered home by special bus. They will ride to the school on regular routed buses.

SINCE the first day of school will be a full day, the cafeteria will be operating. Lunches will cost 40 cents for students in grades 7 to 12 and 35 cents for those in grade 1 through 6. These prices are the same that were in effect last school year. The Exchange school and high school will each have three lunch periods under the new schedule arranged by Dow West and Roger Wolff, principals.

At the session Monday of the Logan Elm school board, members issued a directive to all building principals and the superintendent to consistently enforce the dress code currently in effect for the district. The code reads:

The emphasis of the following dress standards is to develop habit of good grooming and cleanliness among the students of the Logan Elm School. The responsibility for achieving these habits is shared by students, parents, and the school.

Nonsensical, comic, droll or bizarre styles of clothing are not considered proper attire and will not be tolerated.

Dress and skirt lengths are to be reasonable and in good taste as adjudged by the administration. Last year's regulation set the length at four inches above the knee which did not allow for individual differences. Under the new regulation, the principal may determine the dress is not proper even if it only measures three inches or less above the knee.

The final decision of whether a student is well-groomed and neat in appearance rests with the judgment of the building principal.

AS IN the past, pant dresses

and culottes are permitted as long as they do not give the appearance of shorts, which are not permitted during school hours. No "hot pants" are permitted.

Slacks may be worn as long as they are not too tight fitting. Boys' trousers must not be too tight or too short. Belts must be worn when loops are provided and shirt tails must always be tucked in except when designed for outside wear.

All students must wear shoes; boys are always to wear socks and only girls are to wear sandals. Sweatshirts with lettering or a design on them, T-shirts or undershirts are not to be worn to classes other than for physical education. Tank shirts are not permitted.

"Hippie type" dress or hair style is out; boys hair must be off the collar, kept above the eyebrows, combed, clean, and not overly long. Girl-type hair should be worn by girls only.

Mustaches and/or beards are not allowed; neatly trimmed sideburns may extend to one inch below the bottom of the ear lobe — no further.

Violations of this dress code will lead to loss of privileges such as driving to school, attending school sponsored activities, dances, parties, football and basketball games, class plays, band concerts, etc.

Circleville Band Enters First State Fair Marching Contest

Thursday will be a first for the CHS Tiger Band as its members enter competition at the Ohio State Fair Marching Band Contest.

The band, directed by Gary Dean, will make their first attempt at victory in a state band contest competing with other schools having 700 or more students.

Tigerettes, majorettes, and colorguard will perform along with the band at their scheduled 11:15 a.m. marching time on the fairgrounds track. The unit has been granted four minutes to complete its competition routine.

Field commanders Jill Hoffman and Kathy Penn will set off the actual timing when they begin the fanfare which takes the first players across the starting line. A warning gun sounds a three minutes and a finish gun will be fired at four minutes. Rules offer a 25 point penalty per judge for any band failing to complete the show in four minutes.

THE fast-paced show the Tiger band is doing is exactly three minutes and 50 seconds in length, Dean noted and could be seriously hampered by a wet track.

Bands will be judged by outstanding college educators from Tennessee, Louisiana, Florida and Ohio.

Band fans who are attending are asked to gather and form a cheering section for the CHS musicians. With luck, the Circleville group may be among the 12 finalists picked to return in the afternoon for a playoff and presentation of ratings.

Young Girl Charged With Grand Larceny

Grand larceny charges were filed against a 16-year-old E. High St. girl in juvenile court Wednesday morning after she confessed to stealing $117 cash from a girl friend's wallet.

The girl confessed to the theft to Sheriff's Deputy Jim Deal during a lie detector test at London's Bureau of Criminal Investigation Tuesday.

Deputy Deal said the girl took the wallet and money while staying with her friend overnight. She apparently spent the money and discarded the wallet in a new house being built by her family.

BEEF EATERS — A "boycott beef" movement would have gotten nowhere at the Pete Everhart farm Tuesday night. The event was the first annual barbecue of the Pickaway County Cattlemen's Assn. The beef, cooked 18 hours in a pit, was delicious according to the 125 persons attending. Mrs.

John Stevenson dips tea in the serving line at the barbecue while cattlemen and their guests help themselves to plenty of roast beef.

125 Attend First Annual Cattlemen's Pit Barbecue

The Pickaway County Cattlemen's Assn. pit barbecue held at Pete Everhart's Farm Tuesday was attended by near ly 125 persons, including Marvin Berschet of South Charleston, president of the Ohio Cattlemen's Assn.

Also present at the event was Ed Johnson, executive secretary of the Ohio Association. A former local radio announcer, Johnson told the group Tuesday that he has resigned as farm director of WRFD to devote full time to his new venture, Agri Communicators, and his position as executive secretary of the association.

Johnson and Berschet both stressed that cattlemen must become more active in promoting favorable legislation if they are to survive. Berschet contended that action outlawing use of DES as a growth stimulant in feeds pointed out the need for the cattlemen to become more active in legislation.

He noted that the Ohio Cattlemen's Assn. has only a little over 800 members and stated there should be over 3,000 members in the state.

Pickaway County, with 58 members, is one of the strongest county units in the state organization.

President of the local organization is Robert Liston. Assisting in preparing the pit barbecued beef were: Everhart, John Bell, Hewitt Cromley, Bud Enoch, Bruce Liston, Dale Bower, Harold Riffel, Ralph Stir and Ray Noecker. Wives who helped were Mrs. Velma Everhart, Mrs. Marl Enoch

Pickaway Grange

NEBRASKA GRANGE
The Nebraska Grange No. 64 met in regular session Tuesday evening. The business meeting was conducted by Worthy Master Ray Noecker.

A letter of thanks was read from the County Extension Office for the Grange's aid in helping with awards for Junior Fair activities.

A report was given on the Grange exhibit at the fair and Carl Bennett reported on the August session of the Pomona Grange.

The Grange is making plans to serve the August 31 visit of the Bloodmobile under the direction of Mrs. Joseph Peters. The next regular meeting will be held Sept. 5 at the Grange Hall a which time election of the officers for the 1972-73 Grange year will be held.

Serving on the September hospitality committee will be Ray Noecker, Mrs. Florence Wharton, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Noecker and Ray Plum.

Joseph Peters, worthy lecturer, presented an interesting program centered around Presidential election and conventions. Interesting quizzes were conducted on how well the public is informed on election laws and procedures for election of president and vice president at present time and in the past. The program closed with a group singing of the "Battle Hymn of The Republic."

Refreshments were served in the dining room by Mr. and Mrs. Jay Hay.

Sagging Enrollments

For the first time in many years, the freshman classes on college campuses this fall may have an unusual addition: empty seats.

Instead of the usual overabundance of applications, a number of colleges report they are still recruiting to try to fill the fall classes.

Of approximately 8 million openings in colleges across the nation in the upcoming term, as many as 500,000 seats still have not been filled. Many of these will be occupied when term begins, but so many vacancies at this time of year pose a problem for campus recruiters opposite to that they have been accustomed to.

Among colleges and universities which have filled their 1972 freshman

Campus Relevance

Institutions of higher learning may be breaking out of the stereotyped image they have held for many years. It is a healthy change, brought about by increasing competition from vocational schools and community colleges and a changing attitude to college degrees by the public.

With admissions applications falling off and the other pressures facing colleges and universities today, there may be a temptation to loosen admission requirements and otherwise lower standards. That would be the worst possible response.

Part of the problem is that colleges today have become suspect — in their relevance to the world outside and in the manner in which a degree is emphasized to the extent grading is eased and a ready market for diploma mills has flourished. It is the quality of the campus which has suffered in the public eye.

Improving standards, insisting upon academic excellence and changing curriculum where called for are ways to improve the image.

Politicians Won't Listen

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

MIAMI BEACH (KFS) — Sixty-four percent of the Republicans according to an extensive mail survey (8,000 respondents) conducted by the Republican platform committee, gave a "yes" answer to the statement that "it is very important to curb the power of labor leaders." The Democrats are not far behind: 61 per cent of the Democratic respondents to an Opinion Research poll conducted by George Gallup for the National Right-to-Work Committee consider union power to be excessive. So what happens? The Republican Party offers the AFL-CIO's George Many a full committee hearing at its platform resolutions sessions while the Right-to-Work Committee is fobbed off with a mere subcommittee appearance.

The way the politics play up to the official Big Labor proves the point: the power of the big unions is excessive. If the various surveys are correct, the people are far ahead of our Washington representative in believing that the pendulum has swung too far since the Nine-

Find Violations In Nixon Election Fund Reporting

WASHINGTON (AP) — Violations in the handling of nearly $500,000 in campaign funds by committee have been found by the Government Accounting Office, the Washington Post reported in Tuesday's editions.

The Post attributed the report to "several reliable sources" and said that among the irregularities found by the GAO was a $100,000 "campaign security fund," from which $25,000 was deposited in the bank account of one of the suspects in the Democratic party headquarters break-in in June.

But Republican sources said any violations would be nothing more than administrative oversights, the newspaper reported.

The Post said that violations cited by their sources include failure to report receipts and expenditure of funds received by the Committee for the Re-Election of the President after April 7—the effective date of the new campaign finance disclosure law under which the GAO is currently conducting an audit.

Speaking of YOUR HEALTH...

By LESTER L. COLEMAN, M.D.

The chronically ill person — child, adolescent, or adult — can sometimes tyrannize an entire family. His medical condition can become the central focus that affects the social patterns of the family. Sometimes the sick who have completely recovered from an illness strive to perpetuate the dominance they attained while sick.

I know a 14-year-old girl who suffers from bouts of ulcerative colitis, an intestinal condition of severity. When she is in an acute phase of the illness, everything revolves around her because the family is so concerned.

When she is well and is in a period of remission, characteristic of this disease, she hates to give up her acquired importance. It takes a great deal of guidance to return such a family to a normal way of living.

The world of the sick is a special one. At first, the anxiety about the disease is overwhelming. Later, come the emotional tensions and social and economic strains. The patient himself seems to make his world narrower and narrower. There can be a loss of contact with friends, activity, sports, and eventually there is even separation from the immediate family.

The girl with colitis concentrated all her attentions on meal time, bowel time, temperature time, and medication time. She was the key figure in this contracted world. Her total self-absorption seemed to blot out the needs of all the other people.

Almost in a remarkable way, the personality of the sick is a throwback that resembles the actions of an infant where the entire world revolves about a satisfying his fundamental needs.

So subtle is the progressive social degeneration of the family that sometimes it is barely discernible. It is for this reason that every person with a long, protracted illness must be given, in addition to his medication, psychological support, counsel, and orientation to the new world of being sick.

The tendency to exploit illness and capitalize on it must be stopped before it becomes a fixed pattern of behavior. People often are not courageous enough to lay down stringent rules that might seem to be a source of distress to the patient. Their own guilt, that ever present, dominant emotion, establishes a trap from which it is difficult to be extricated.

The sick have a right to be indulged during the acute phase of an illness. It is imperative, however, that a family return to its normal way of life.

It is an industry, therefore, that must be irrigated. Because lenders generally can obtain higher rates from other loans, they must be offered incentives to put it into housing.

Sagging Enrollments

For the first time in many years, the freshman classes on college campuses this fall may have an unusual addition: empty seats.

Instead of the usual overabundance of applications, a number of colleges report they are still recruiting to try to fill the fall classes.

Of approximately 8 million openings in colleges across the nation in the upcoming term, as many as 500,000 seats still have not been filled. Many of these will be occupied when term begins, but so many vacancies at this time of year pose a problem for campus recruiters opposite to that they have been accustomed to.

Among colleges and universities which have filled their 1972 freshman classes, many have noted a drop in the number of applications. The bloom is off the rush to college, for this year at least.

Several reasons are advanced, including the constantly rising wages and the discovery of the last several years that the best opportunities for employment are not all among the college-trained.

Vocational training may never equal the bachelor degrees in numbers, but the former is growing while the colleges appear to be stabilizing. By this time next year it will be more meaningful to assess whether the phenomenon is a trend or simply a pause in traditional higher education.

Campus Relevance

Institutions of higher learning may be breaking out of the stereotyped image they have held for many years. It is a healthy change, brought about by increasing competition from vocational schools and community colleges and a changing attitude to college degrees by the public.

With admissions applications falling off and the other pressures facing colleges and universities today, there may be a temptation to loosen admission requirements and otherwise lower standards. That would be the worst possible response.

Part of the problem is that colleges today have become suspect — in their relevance to the world outside and in the manner in which a degree is emphasized to the extent grading is eased and a ready market for diploma mills has flourished. It is the quality of the campus which has suffered in the public eye.

Improving standards, insisting upon academic excellence and changing curriculum where called for are ways to improve the image.

Politicians Won't Listen

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

MIAMI BEACH (KFS) — Sixty-four percent of the Republicans according to an extensive mail survey (8,000 respondents) conducted by the Republican platform committee, gave a "yes" answer to the statement that "it is very important to curb the power of labor leaders." The Democrats are not far behind: 61 per cent of the Democratic respondents to an Opinion Research poll conducted by George Gallup for the National Right-to-Work Committee consider union power to be excessive. So what happens? The Republican Party offers the AFL-CIO's George Many a full committee hearing at its platform resolutions sessions while the Right-to-Work Committee is fobbed off with a mere subcommittee appearance.

The way the politics play up to official Big Labor proves the point: the power of the big unions is excessive. If the various surveys are correct, the people are far ahead of our Washington representative in believing that the pendulum has swung too far since the Nineteen Thirties in favor of the union bosses. But in an election year nothing can be done about it. Nixon plays golf with Meany; George McGovern, in an effort to get Meany off that golf course, repudiates his own Right-to-Work voting record in the past. The need of both political parties for access to the contents of union treasuries and the get-out-the-vote effort of union manpower is just too strong to let opinion surveys interfere.

If the political parties won't defer to the popular majority, the question is whether the courts offer the people any fall-back hope. In three states, New York, Rhode Island, and Michigan, absurdities in state law actually subsidize strikers by giving them relief or unemployment insurance while collective bargaining dawdles along to conclusions that must, in the nature of things, favor the union side. The Michigan situation is especially crazy. Actually, strikers in Michigan are not eligible for immediate unemployment compensation; they have to resort to a loophole in the law to get it. The loophole, however, is big enough to accommodate the passage of a ten-ton truck, as the Dow Chemical Company has discovered.

What has happened in the Dow case is that 135 strikers at the company's Bay City, Michigan, plants, took jobs for short periods with other employers after walking out on Dow employment. They pumped gas or washed walls in bars, in some cases earning as little as $1 for part-time work before being idled. This, according to a 1968 judicial ruling, made them non-strikers and so qualified them for unemployment compensation. But this by no means let Dow Chemical off the hook. The Michigan law happens to provide that if a laid-off worker hasn't accumulated sufficient unemployment fund credit with his most recent employer, the money will be taken from the account of whatever company had previously employed him.

At $2,500 a week drawn from the Dow contribution to the state unemployment fund, this runs into money. With no particular incentive to speed up the bargaining (The Dow Company has offered the union an average increase of 90 cents an hour over a three-year period), the strike could go on till deer-hunting season. And then comes the time when the whole of northern Michigan goes daft over snowmobiling. Under the circumstances a subsidized strike becomes a prolonged vacation. Who could turn it down?

Hence the desperation that attaches to the Dow suit in Federal District Court in Detroit asking that the payment of Michigan unemployment compensation to strikers be declared illegal. The U.S. Chamber of Commerce is associating itself with Dow in filing the suit.

If the politicians won't help curb labor excesses, the courts might conceivably do it. The Michigan decision would affect New York and Rhode Island and — who knows? — it might even touch the political platform writers by 1976.

NEW YORK (AP) — The recurring problem of housing is the irregular manner in which the money flows. In a flush economy the mortgage channels are filled to bursting; in tighter times hardly a dribble passes through.

It is an industry, therefore, that must be irrigated. Because lenders generally can obtain higher rates from other loans, they must be offered incentives to put it into housing.

The most recent of these is the variable interest rate, now being pushed by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, which regulates the biggest mortgage lenders of all, the nation's savings and loan associations.

Under such plans the borrower pays the lender a higher rate of interest if interest rates in general go up. The payment can be handled in two ways: By increasing the monthly note, or by adding to the loan's length.

In either case the effect is to give lenders assurance that if general rates rise they won't be locked into mortgages that could prove very costly.

This development is one of several recently that is bound to provide far more stability to the housing market while at the same time making it easier for Americans to own their own homes.

Earlier, the 5 per cent down payment was introduced, and while it may take some lenders a while to get used to the idea of such a large loan for a long time, the increasing stability of the market is expected to lead them that way.

One incentive to do so is the enormous potential of the housing market. More than 60 per cent of all units today are owner-occupied, and the rate continues to increase, notwithstanding the huge apartment houses that have changed the appearance of much of urban America.

Simultaneous with this rise in home ownership is the development of the second home market. And while it is unlikely that 95 per cent loans will be made on second homes, the trend in all probability will be easier terms.

The fact is that, despite interest rates that are held by regulatory officials to levels that are sometimes lower than those offered to blue chip corporations, the housing market is attractive to lenders.

The chief attraction is security. The delinquency rate on mortgages is minute. And even if the lender is forced to foreclose, he generally can recoup the greater part of his investment.

Fremont Amusement Firms Named In Suit

COVINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Amusement Corp. of America and Olson Shows, Inc., both of Fremont, Ohio, have been named defendants in a $181,000 damage suit resulting from a carnival accident Aug. 22, 1971.

Harold Peters of Covington, Ky., filed the suit Monday in Kenton Circuit Court. He said that his two daughters, Patricia, 16, and Dona, 18, were hurt in a fall from a ride known as "The Wild Thing" during a carnival at a shopping center here.

Old Faithful hasn't been known to miss a performance in 90 years.

Free Speech Clinic Operated By OSU Therapists Saturdays

Children and adults of Pickaway County and the Speech and Hearing center at Ohio State University benefit jointly from weekly four-hour sessions of speech and auditory training conducted at the Mound St. school every Saturday morning.

Margaret Shrewsbury, Columbus, who recently completed doctorate work in speech pathology at Ohio State University, is supervisor of the clinic, which is in its fifth year.

She said the clinic has an average case load of 70 people, almost all of whom attend the free Saturday clinics regularly.

And her clinicians, "auxiliary group therapists," acquire practical experience in the clinic which is required for an undergraduate degree in speech and hearing therapy from Ohio State University.

"Our primary goal is to be shut down," she explained. "When we started the program in 1967, we were the only county speech therapists. But now, both school systems have employed therapists who have put us in the role of auxiliary therapists."

"We handle referrals from parents, teachers and the therapists — cases that need more individual attention than is practical for school therapists. And many of our cases involve preschool children and physically handicapped adults, those who can not take advantage of school programs."

The clinic was established in 1967 under joint planning of the State Department of Health and the Easter Seal Society. Therapists from Ohio State University donate their time in exchange for clinical experience and there were many doctoral candidates in speech studies to serve as supervisors.

Mrs. Paul Schein, Route 1, Williamsport, and Mrs. Montford Kirkwood, Circleville, are local volunteer help.

Mrs. Schein serves as local coordinator and Mrs. Kirkwood is the secretary.

The local Easter Seal Society donates supplies for the clinic and furnishes a volunteer worker every Saturday to staff the client waiting room.

Actual therapy supplies are donated by the clinicians themselves and more specialized equipment can be borrowed from the Ohio State University clinic.

In addition, the Circleville La Sertoma Club has donated a language master, a unique tape device which offers the client instant feedback of his problem speech in contrast with model speech. This device will be used in the Saturday clinics and also in the county and city school systems by trained therapists.

There are five therapists per university quarter at the clinic to give half-hour blocks of instruction.

Prospective clients are given hearing and speech screenings by the therapists to detect problems, and then drilled into correct speech. Clients are dismissed when they can carry-over corrected speech outside the classroom.

Anyone wishing to enroll in the clinic is asked to phone Mrs. Schein, 986-5909, for an appointment.

SCREENING — Bonnie Mathews, (left), Worthington, who is working on a masters degree in speech and hearing therapy, is pictured given a hearing screening with an audiometer. Robbie Black, 6, raises his hand when he hears the tone. Randy Fik, of Birmingham, conducts articulation, or speech, screenings to determine defective speech or any language problems with Gary Heacox, 6.

Something Was Rotten In Pittsburgh Suburb

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Something was rotten in suburban Green Tree over the weekend — two railroad cars laden with rancid fish meal.

The cars pulled into Green Tree late Saturday, and the pungent smell quickly evoked hundreds of angry phone calls from offended residents.

Officials finally swore out a complaint against the owners, fined them $111, and the cars were moved out of the borough.

Storms Hit Wide Area

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A wide band of showers and thunderstorms extended across the nation today from Texas to Lower Michigan.

Power lines were knocked down in parts of Chicago, and planes to O'Hare International Airport were delayed 45 minutes by a thunderstorm late Tuesday.

In Austin, Tex., a windstorm blew out several glass doors and windows in the state capitol. Rain fell onto the rotunda floor under the dome.

While the Plains, parts of the Midwest and the Far West had pleasant weather, additional showers and thunderstorms broke out over the Gulf, middle and south Atlantic state and the mountainous West.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 40 at Duluth, Minn., to 97 at Blythe, Calif.

In a banquet attended by 400 persons, Enarson was presented CSU's "Viking Shield," a award previously received only by former Ohio Gov. James Rhodes and Cleveland businessman James Nance. Enarson was also presented a horse for his country home in Colorado.

Our thing is Paint

It seems like everybody is doing his thing these days. Which is okay if the "thing" is done right. If not... then there's a real "hang-up" of one kind or another.

Take paint, for example. This highly specialized product is being sold by clerks in some stores who don't know which paint to recommend for the many kinds of surfaces paint is made for. Or how much paint is needed. Or what kind of brush or roller to use.

We could go on and on. But the point is... our "thing" is paint. And we know paint better than we know ourselves. Better (we believe) than any retailer in town.

So let's do our "thing" together the next time you paint. It's the thing to do if you want the right paint in the right amount at the right price.

Florida Firm Hits Kentucky Fraud Law

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Terming Kentucky's new consumer-fraud law "vague and overbroad," a Florida-based firm Tuesday filed suit in U.S. District Court here asking that it be declared unconstitutional.

The suit was filed by Dare To Be Great, Inc., a firm that sells motivational courses and is now under a temporary injunction based on the 1972 consumer fraud law.

Lexington attorney Charles L. Calk filed the suit for Dare To Be Great; Glen W. Turner Enterprises, Inc., the conglomerate that includes Dare To Be Great as a subsidiary; and James M. Harris, an official of the firm.

The suit claims the law has caused "immediate harm and irreparable injury" to the plaintiffs by preventing them from exercising their constitutional rights to conduct interstate commerce. It also says the law gives the attorney general "arbitrary power to determine what is 'false, misleading and deceptive' as specified in the law."

The suit asked that a three-judge federal panel be formed to issue a temporary injunction against enforcement of the law and to declare it void.

Fayette Circuit Judge L.T. Grant issued a temporary injunction Aug. 10, barring Dare To Be Great from holding promotional meetings in Kentucky following a suit brought by the attorney general's office. A hearing has been set for Aug. 31 on that order.

As a sauce for a steamed pudding mix together 1/2 cup sugar, 1/2 cup heavy cream and 1/4 cup butter in the top part of a double boiler; cook over boiling water for 15 minutes.

Florida Firm Hits Kentucky Fraud Law

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Terming Kentucky's new consumer-fraud law "vague and overbroad," a Florida-based firm Tuesday filed suit in U.S. District Court here asking that it be declared unconstitutional.

The suit was filed by Dare To Be Great, Inc., a firm that sells motivational courses and is now under a temporary injunction based on the 1972 consumer fraud law.

Lexington attorney Charles L. Calk filed the suit for Dare To Be Great; Glen W. Turner Enterprises, Inc., the conglomerate that includes Dare To Be Great as a subsidiary; and James M. Harris, an official of the firm.

The suit claims the law has caused "immediate harm and irreparable injury" to the plaintiffs by preventing them from exercising their constitutional rights to conduct interstate commerce. It also says the law gives the attorney general "arbitrary power to determine what is 'false, misleading and deceptive' as specified in the law."

The suit asked that a three-judge federal panel be formed to issue a temporary injunction against enforcement of the law and to declare it void.

Fayette Circuit Judge L.T. Grant issued a temporary injunction Aug. 10, barring Dare To Be Great from holding promotional meetings in Kentucky following a suit brought by the attorney general's office. A hearing has been set for Aug. 31 on that order.

As a sauce for a steamed pudding mix together 1/2 cup sugar, 1/2 cup heavy cream and 1/4 cup butter in the top part of a double boiler; cook over boiling water for 15 minutes.

Hospitalized

Mrs. Maude Rihl had the misfortune to take a fall in her home last Wednesday and suffered a broken hip. She was taken to Berger Hospital by ambulance and was to undergo surgery on Saturday. All her neighbors and many friends wish a speedy recovery to this lovely, charming lady.

Jean Justus Sr. of near Circleville, but well known in our village, is a patient at Berger confined with pneumonia. His sidekick Dot had to cancel plans to chaperone at Westfall band camp this week after pp became ill. Cheers and may your recovery be swift and complete, friend Jean (that's the French spelling).

Janet (Mrs. David) Lovett is quite ill and in the hospital at Athens, Ohio. Her mother, Mrs. Charles Picklesimer, was with her. May Janet, too, enjoy good health, sure and complete, as soon as possible.

Poppy Bill Easterday is much better after being rushed to Berger Hospital in an unconscious state last Wednesday night, not once but twice where he was admitted. Main culprit was carbon monoxide from car exhaust at the shop (and the door to the shop was wide open), so take warning folks!

Joe Wright, is a patient at Chillicothe Hospital Room 312. Our sincere wishes for a rapid return to home, family, friends and last but by no means least, the best of health.

Home are the travelers Sowers from a delightful California vacation. Mr. Charles Sr., his wife Lilly and son Barry. And drew traveled the increasingly popular camper style to Riverside, Calif. via Route 66 which took them through Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, Oklahoma, Texas, New Mexico, Arizona into California. Going the southern route they crossed the desert in the day time and they report it was hot, man, hot.

At Riverside they were the houseguests of cousin, Fred and Clara Albritton. Being employees of Camp Pendleton, the Albrittons treated their company to a personally conducted tour of the entire base which proved to be quite fascinating. They also led them round the harbor at Oceanside Calif.

The Sowers trio also guested with their nephew (foster son like) and his family at Imperial Beach. Perhaps many villagers recall Billy Don Bennett who spent his boyhood days here. The travelers did the Disneyland routine which will keep third grader Barry busy talking about for some time. Coming home the northern way brought them through a place called Needles, of all names. They "hit" the desert at night returning and it proved to be somewhat cooler. Several thousand miles of highway, a bit weary, glad to get home, but many pleasant and happy memories makes it all very worthwhile.

My sweetie pie of a neighbor, Ruth Plummer, is back in the neighborhood after being with her niece and her family down Florida way for some time. It's good to see her light shining again!

Back to the daily paper delivering task are the Haller children after having a wonderful sightseeing tour of the state of Missouri. Prents Bob and Josephine Haller and the youngsters, Patricia, Bobby, Martha, Linda, Barry, Cindy and Ntue had hoped to visit with family and friends south of the border down Mexico way but as sometimes happens those plans were scuttled until a later date — possibly at Christmas time.

Ray and Vida Smiley of Dayton were in town Sunday to be with our beloved neighbor and Ray's mother, Mrs. Phoebe Smiley. They all drove to Chillicothe for a nice luncheon at Bob Evans.

Band Camp

Three buses, innumerable pick-up trucks stacked with luggage and a horse trailer filled with band hats — that was the caravan that set out from Westfall Sunday evening headed for Camp Kirkwood, Wilmington and band camp. Parents night will be observed Wednesday night between the hours of 6:30 until 8:30 p.m. Papa Kibby will be drilling his classy lads and lassies very hard this week preparing for marching band contest at the Ohio State Fair on Thursday morning at 8 a.m. as well as their appearance at the Westfall Round Up (Sept. 4) and their first half time show on Sept. 8.

Those going for parents night are advised to take Route 22 to Wilmington then take Route 73 for approximately 3 miles and there will be a sign on the left side of the road designating Camp Kirkwood — turn left and continue to the camp.

Bus Routes

A more detailed plan will come your way next week concerning bus routes but for this time high school students living IN WILLIAMSPORT ONLY are apprised that Bus No. 11 driven by Helen Whitesed will go thru the village picking up students at approximately 6:25 a.m.; Charles Wallace, also picking up high school students will be in town at approximately 6:40 a.m. They will be making stops established along Main and Water Streets respectively.

On the elementary route, Bus 10 driven by Betty Bilek will be in town picking up students at approximately 7:50 a.m. and Bus 4 driven by Oscar Atwood will arrive in town around 7:40 a.m. Another bus route, not yet manned, will come into town sometime around 7:30 a.m. for student pick up.

Now we get to the Junior High students and of the moment Gladys Warnock will be loading her bus roughly around 10:35 a.m. Let me reiterate that these times quoted are for here in the village only and do not apply to those areas in the country.

Walter and Elsie Wright journeyed to Forrest, Ohio which is near Canton for a weekend Airstream trailer rally. This was a bit of a breather for civic minded, hard working Elsie before she got into the swing of charming the rummage sale to be held by the women of the Williamsport United Methodist Church on Saturday, Sept. 2. A pleasant chat with her this a.m. brought forth the information that donations for the sale will be accepted on Sept. 1 at the church annex. If unable to bring your donation, then contact the Chairman Wright or her daughter, Mrs. Bill Keller, who is helping. Bric a brac, clothing, furniture, toys, any kind of useable items will be welcomed. Keep in mind that what might be your junk could be another's treasure!

A happy mama, Mrs. Raymond Kneese reports that son Brad who is serving a tour of duty in Vietnam has received a promotion and his address is now: SP4 Bardley B. Kneese 281-54-2090 624th S&S Co. (DS) APO San Francisco, California 96491.

His sidekick Dot had to cancel plans to chaperone at Westfall band camp this week after pp became ill. Cheers and may your recovery be swift and complete, friend Jean (that's the French spelling).

Janet (Mrs. David) Lovett is quite ill and in the hospital at Athens, Ohio. Her mother, Mrs. Charles Picklesimer, was with her. May Janet, too, enjoy good health, sure and complete, as soon as possible.

Poppy Bill Easterday is much better after being rushed to Berger Hospital in an unconscious state last Wednesday night, not once but twice where he was admitted. Main culprit was carbon monoxide from car exhaust at the shop (and the door to the shop was wide open), so take warning folks!

Joe Wright, is a patient at Chillicothe Hospital Room 312. Our sincere wishes for a rapid return to home, family, friends and last but by no means least, the best of health.

Home are the travelers Sowers from a delightful California vacation. Mr. Charles Sr., his wife Lilly and son Barry Andrew traveled the increasingly popular camper style to Riverside, Calif. via Route 66 which took them through Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, Oklahoma, Texas, New Mexico, Arizona into California. Going the southern route they crossed the desert in the day time and they report it was hot, man, hot.

At Riverside they were the houseguests of cousin, Fred and Clara Albritton. Being employees of Camp Pendleton, the Albrittons treated their company to a personally conducted tour of the entire base which proved to be quite fascinating. They also led them round the harbor at Oceanside Calif.

The Sowers trio also guested with their nephew (foster son like) and his family at Imperial Beach. Perhaps many villagers recall Billy Don Bennett who spent his boyhood days here.

The Disneyland routine which will keep third grader Barry busy talking about for some time. Coming home the northern way brought them through a place called Needles, of all names. They "hit" the desert at night returning and it proved to be somewhat cooler. Several thousand miles of highway, a bit weary, glad to get home, but many pleasant and happy memories makes it all very worthwhile.

My sweetie pie of a neighbor, Ruth Plummer, is back in the neighborhood after being with her niece and her family down Florida way for some time. It's good to see her light shining again!

Back to the daily paper delivering task are the Haller children after having a wonderful sightseeing tour of the state of Missouri. Prents Bob and Josephine Haller and the youngsters, Patricia, Bobby, Martha, Linda, Barry, Cindy and Ntlic had hoped to visit with family and friends south of the border down Mexico way but as sometimes happens those plans were scuttled until a later date — possibly at Christmas time.

Ray and Vida Smiley of Dayton were in town Sunday to be with our beloved neighbor and Ray's mother, Mrs. Phoebe Smiley. They all drove to Chillicothe for a nice luncheon at Bob Evans.

Band Camp

Three buses, innumerable pick-up trucks stacked with luggage and a horse trailer filled with band hats — that was the caravan that set out from Westfall Sunday evening headed for Camp Kirkwood, Wilmington and band camp. Parents night will be observed Wednesday night between the hours of 6:30 until 8:30 p.m. Papa Kibby will be drilling his classy lads and lassies very hard this week preparing for marching band contest at the Ohio State Fair on Thursday morning at 8 a.m. as well as their appearance at the Westfall Round Up (Sept. 4) and their first halftime show on Sept. 8.

Those going for parents night are advised to take Route 22 to Wilmington then take Route 73 for approximately 3 miles and there will be a sign on the left side of the road designating Camp Kirkwood — turn left and continue to the camp.

Bus Routes

A more detailed plan will come your way next week concerning bus routes but for this time high school students living IN WILLIAMSPORT ONLY are apprised that Bus No. 11 driven by Helen Whiteseed will go thru the village picking up students at approximately 6:25 a.m.; Charles Wallace, also picking up high school students will be in town at approximately 6:40 a.m. They will be making stops established along Main and Water Streets respectively.

On the elementary route, Bus 10 driven by Betty Bilek will be in town picking up students at approximately 7:50 a.m. and Bus 4 driven by Oscar Atwood will arrive in town around 7:40 a.m. Another bus route, not yet manned, will come into town sometime around 7:30 a.m. for student pick up.

Now we get to the Junior High students and of the moment Gladys Warnock will be loading her bus roughly around 10:35 a.m. Let me reiterate that these times quoted are for here in the village only and do not apply to those areas in the country.

Walter and Elsie Wright journeyed to Forrest, Ohio which is near Canton for a weekend Airstream trailer rally. This was a bit of a breather for civic minded, hard working Elsie before she got into the swing of charming the rummage sale to be held by the women of the Williamsport United Methodist Church on Saturday, Sept. 2. A pleasant chat with her this a.m. brought forth the information that donations for the sale will be accepted on Sept. 1 at the church annex. If unable to bring your donation, then contact the Chairman Wright or her daughter, Mrs. Bill Keller, who is helping. Bric a brac, clothing, furniture, toys, any kind of useable items will be welcomed. Keep in mind that what might be your junk could be another's treasure!

A happy mama, Mrs. Raymond Kneese reports that son Brad who is serving a tour of duty in Vietnam has received a promotion and his address is now: SP4 Bardley B. Kneese 281-542090 624th S&S Co. (DS) APO San Francisco, California 96491.

Remember

Tickets for the Ohio State Fair can be purchased by senior citizens at half price from this writer up until Sept. 1.

The Williamsport Sulphur Spring Festival will be held Sept. 13 thru Sept. 17. Watch for forthcoming details in next week's column.

Westfall school begins Wednesday, Aug. 30 — first class at (groom) 7 a.m. at the high school. I knew there would be an advantage some day to having been born too soon.

Heavy Viet Fight Reported

Que Son Valley Swarms With Reds

SAIGON (AP) — Heavy fighting was reported at the mouth of the Que Son Valley Tuesday, and 30 miles to the north the North Vietnamese shelled Da Nang for the third time in less than a week.

Officers in the field said South Vietnamese infantrymen and rangers advancing into the valley ran into three North Vietnamese battalions numbering as many as 900 troops.

The Saigon Command claimed 108 North Vietnamese troops were killed, but reported only 24 weapons captured. South Vietnamese losses were one killed and 28 wounded, the command said.

The South Vietnamese launched a spoiling operation Monday, two days after the North Vietnamese ran them out of the valley. Now they are trying to keep the North Vietnamese from continuing their push toward Da Nang and the populous lowlands along Highway 1.

Enemy gunners fired five rockets into Da Nang before dawn today, wounding 11 civilians and wrecking five houses. Twelve mortar rounds hit the Marble Mountain air facility on the edge of Da Nang, but there were no reports of any U.S. or South Vietnamese casualties.

Eighty miles to the north, the two month stalemate in the battle for Quang Tri continued with casualties mounting on both sides. The Saigon command said 79 North Vietnamese were killed Tuesday, while eight government troops were killed and 73 wounded. North Vietnamese gunners slammed nearly 1,400 shells into government positions.

U.S. fighter-bombers flew 235 strikes Tuesday and today in support of the South Vietnamese fighting at Quang Tri and east of the Que Son Valley.

Pilots said they knocked out nine supply trucks and one tank just south of the demilitarized zone.

Indict Man For Larceny

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Nunzio R. Calvo, a Cuyahoga County Soldiers' Relief Commission member, was removed from the county payroll Tuesday after being indicted by the county grand jury on 47 counts of larceny by trick.

Calvo was one of five persons indicted by the grand jury Tuesday for alleged involvement in misuse of relief commission funds. His indictment allegedly involves $9,376.

County Auditor George Voinovich estimated the total amount of money involved in commission irregularities at $100,000 and Dennis McGuire, an assistant county prosecutor, said the investigation is not complete.

Also indicted were East Side businessmen Dom Tichione, Anthony DiLillo, Mike Spuzillo and Ignatius Cusumano for allegedly cashing commission vouchers without providing goods in return, but with the consent of the commission.

Tichione, owner of ABC Furniture and Appliance Mart, was indicted on 19 counts. DiLillo, partner in DiLillo Brothers Men's Wear, was indicted on 15 counts. Spuzillo, owner of Mike Spuzillo Foods, was indicted on seven counts and Cusumano, co-owner of Cusumano's Grocery and Meat Market, was indicted on six counts.

East Liverpool Man Killed In Montana

BOZEMAN, Mont. (AP) — The body of an East Liverpool, Ohio man was found near here early Tuesday morning, where he apparently plummeted over a 50 foot embankment while riding his motorcycle.

Officials identified the victim as Kenneth A. Robins, an employee of an area lumber company. Officials said the man apparently went off the embankment sometime the night before. His body was discovered by a local resident.

Tractor Thief Arrested In County

A 29-year-old Lancaster man, James Deal, was arrested by Canal Winchester police chief R. C. Miller about 5 a.m. Tuesday at Perrill Road and Route 674, according to the Department.

Deputies Jim Deal and Earl Kuhn, who were asked to assist the Franklin County units said Deal was a passenger in a car involved with stealing garden tractors from Franklin County.

Officers from three counties converged on the car and its three occupants during a high speed chase in which the tractor's front wheels were stuck in the trunk of the car with rear wheels spinning at speeds up to 90 miles per hour.

The car's other two occupants, still unknown, escaped from the car after it crashed into a ditch on Perrill Road.

Richard Nixon, this convention is a time to savor. The man who has been involved in controversy from his arrival on the national political scene a quarter century ago now stands supreme in his party and, if the polls are right, in the nation.

There are obstacles ahead. Far more Americans still consider themselves Democrats than regard themselves as Republicans, and the polls show people consider the Democratic party better equipped in many areas to deal with national problems.

The connection of Republican officials with the bugging and attempted break-in of the Democratic party's headquarters is before a grand jury, posing political risks for the GOP later this fall.

There is also the warning of the example set by both parties in the past few years. Eight years after their smashing 1964 electoral victory, Democrats face a second straight presidential setback, severe rain on party unity and perhaps the most serious threat to their 18-year grip on congressional control.

A decade earlier, Republicans failed to build on the Eisenhower electoral successes.

Now, the Republican party's over-all prospects are brighter than they have been since the early Eisenhower years, and most people here believe the euphoria at this convention is real, at least for the 1972 presidential race.

Stolen Auto Recovered In County

Pickaway County Sheriff's Deputy Jim Dea recovered a stolen car 5 p.m. Tuesday on Route 23, one mile south of the city after it had run out of gasoline.

The car, owned by Robert E. Dailey, Route 1, Kingston, was reported stolen to the Ross County Sheriff's Department early Tuesday morning.

Nomination Night Programmed To The Minute

By LEE BYRD
Associated Press Writer
MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) —

The balloon man got nervous, the scriptwriter got irritable and John Wayne blew a line. But the colorful show which swept President Nixon to re-nomination was a masterpiece in political programming.

Even the lone voice of dissent was raised in a manner prescribed by Nixon ringmasters in an evening of carefully orchestrated fanfare designed to shower maximum glory upon the President during prime time television coverage.

Take, for example, the 14-minute "spontaneous demonstration" which erupted at the close of the convention roll call. Except for lasting an extra two minutes, it went precisely as planned — including the appearance upon the floor of hundreds of cheering, sign-carrying youths who had been bused to the hall by the President's re-election committee.

As to why the youngsters were far more vocal than the delegates themselves, 17-year-old Butch Stein of Elkins Park, Pa., volunteered that "They told us that the way to get another convention pass is to keep yelling."

Meanwhile, virtually all the speeches and even such minutiae as Chairman Gerald R. Ford's admonitions to the delegates to clear the aisles were being cleared in advance through a command point occupied by one of the convention's lesser-known operatives, scriptwriter Russ Freeburg.

Freeburg, a former Chicago newspaperman, is "the guy who glues everything together," according to one of his colleagues. This includes preparation of some of the speeches and approval or editing of all others, both for content and timing.

Hence, he and his crew provide luminaries at the podium with a minute-by-minute scenario hours before an event occurs. In one case, ABC News reported, Ford was handed the precise language — and the time — to announce passage of a procedural motion, even though the vote had yet to be taken.

And John Wayne, the elder statesman in the GOP box-office parade, was advised to introduce a film on the President with the remark that Nixon is "a great president, and good guy." But Wayne reversed the order of the phrases.

When Freeburg was called by a newsman earlier Wednesday about the demonstration planning, he replied with some annoyance: "There's a balloon drop scheduled. I don't know how many. I don't know who put them there."

But that was before the script had a chance to work, and work well.

For one thing, Rep. Paul N. McCloskey's sole would-be delegate, Tom Mayer of New Mexico, was denied a seat and hence a chance to air his anti-war views. So then it fell to Rep. Manuel Lujan, chairman of the New Mexico delegation to cast the single vote for McCloskey.

He dutifully did so, but not before seconding Nixon's nomination and telling the television audience that it was only a matter of state law which kept him from voting for the President as well.

But if Mayer's swift and overwhelming oyster demonstrated the control of Nixon's forces, it took Frank Martin's handiwork to add a final touch of free-spending glitter.

Martin, the bearded, 35-year-old operator of a Miami stagecraft firm, spent most of the evening pacing the convention floor, looking wearily — and warily — upward.

He and a 20-man crew had spent nearly 18 hours blowing up some 22,000 red, white and blue balloons and hanging them from the ceiling in 11 massive nets, each rigged with a trap door. Would they open "No-body knows," he said.

"We had to blow them up at my shop, using seven compressors, and truck them over. Now, what happened, is that on one of the expressways, the net opened up."

"When the highway patrol got a call that there were 2,000 balloons all over 1.95 at 2 a.m., he said you've gotta be drunk."

At the end, Ford proclaimed Nixon the nominee, the hall exploded in sound, the band played "When the Saints Go Marching In" and the President's wife, two daughters and a son-in-law took in the whole wild scene with bright smiles.

And so did Martin, for his balloons were falling everywhere, exploding like fire-crackers.

Fear Giant Columbus Traffic Jam

By MARY SCHEIER
Associated Press Writer
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — If

you've got your route all figured for a Sept. 3 trip to this All-American City, be prepared to be flexible.

That's the day the Cincinnati Bengals and the Cleveland Browns play an exhibition professional football game at Ohio State University stadium.

It's also the second-to-last day of the 1972 Ohio State Fair. It's the first time the two events have ever been held on the same day.

And City Traffic Engineer James Musick says, "I hope it'll be the last."

Musick and other traffic officials here expect at least a quarter of a million people to be here for the two events.

If the officials have their way, the two streams of traffic will be like two ships that pass in the night—they'll never meet, but will follow carefully designed exit directions to keep jam-ups to a minimum and traffic flow smooth — relatively speaking.

All 85,000 stadium seats for the football game are sold. And last year 254,000 people attended the fair's final Sunday, Columbus Police Sergeant Orville Bell said.

There'll be 195 city police on various traffic assignments that day, along with 33 Ohio Highway Patrolmen, two helicopters, and five staffers from the city traffic engineers office.

Musick outlined the highway battle plan:

All football traffic coming from northern Ohio will be directed off Interstate 270 onto State Route 315, Olentangy River Road, which passes near the stadium.

The first stretch of Olentangy River Road, two-lane and two-way, will be made one-way south toward the stadium.

Football traffic coming from southern Ohio will be sent up the Sandusky leg of I-71 onto Olentangy River Road.

Fair traffic will be sent onto I-71 from the downtown area.

"We hope to keep fair traffic on the east side of town and the Olentangy River," Musick said, "and keep the football traffic on the west side."

Musick said special lead-in signs will be put on I-71. If you're going to the football game, look for a sign with a football, and follow the accompanying arrows.

On that same marker, there'll be an electric sign for the state fair.

The three fair signs are controlled by radio out of Musick's office. An Ohio State Patrolman hovering in a helicopter over the freeway will radio traffic conditions to Columbus Police and police will relay the reports to Musick's office.

The signs read "Fairgrounds Parking use Exit No.—and —." The engineer's office will change exit numbers according to conditions.

CWRU Scientists Develop Miniature Metal Detector

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — A solid-state metal detector small enough to be held in the palm of one hand may be too small, one of two Case Western Reserve University staff members who developed the instrument said Tuesday.

Dr. Dov Hazony, professor of electrical sciences and applied physics at the school, said that airline security officials, police and industrial representatives who viewed a demonstration of the device Tuesday felt it was too small.

"The thing could be marketed the way it is," Dr. Hazony said. "But the airlines thought it should be made bigger."

He said airline representatives felt the small detector, sensitive enough to pick up the small amount of tin foil on a pack of cigarettes, would take too long to check passengers.

"When you get it bigger, you get it a little deeper in its ability to detect," Dr. Hazony said. "It could take too long to frisk passengers."

But he said enlarging the device he built with fellow worker Abe Zevi is "a minor problem."

"The present metal detection devices used in airports are bulky and often unreliable," said Dr. Hazony. He said his small version is "more reliable."

His device utilizes high frequency sound waves which "bounce back" if any type of metal is found and then activates a buzzer. It operates on a regular battery, similar to those in transistor radios.

"We feel large groups of persons could be checked quite easily and quickly by taking the device and just passing it by them," he said. "Then if any metal is found in security personnel were concerned, full-scale search could be undertaken."

Dr. Hazony, who has applied for U.S. patents on the device, said he has several companies interested in manufacturing it. He estimated it could be produced commercially for under $30.

Professor Believes Men Deserve Special Study, Too

By RUTH ANN RAGLAND
Associated Press Writer
ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) —

A Women's Studies program is funded at the University of New Mexico, and a male professor says that what's good for the goose is good for the gander.

Dr. Richard F. Tomasson, chairman of the Sociology Department, who says he's changed at least 50 per cent of his three kids' diapers, is calling for equal time and equal money for the men.

He said the idea of a Women's Studies is "absolutely silly," but if the women are going to have it, the men should too.

He's submitted his proposed curriculum for Men's Studies, complete with courses covering the "Mythology of Male Superiority" and "The Legal Status of American Men," to the university curriculum committee. But he said he hasn't received an official response.

He said his latest greeting is, "Whose husband are you?"

Tomasson maintains the Women's Lib movement has merit in advocating equal pay and equal treatment in careers. And he says "We should get rid of sexual linkage for occupations."

He said he performs house duties such as dish washing, cooking and helping with the children, boys, "liberated of course," ages 9, 10, and 13.

He doesn't iron, but then, "my wife never irons either."

Tomasson said he unquestionably would have hired a male secretary had one applied for the job.

There might be some impending discrimination against men "with all this business of hiring women" he said.

On the subject of "Ms.," Tomasson said it should be ditched in preference for just plain "M."

"It is pronounced mmmmm."

Business Briefs

Equitable Federal Savings and Loan has more than doubled the size of its Lancaster office according to Carl Heister, vice president.

Equitable has added approximately 18,500 square feet to its building. Of the addition, Equitable will retain approximately 4,600 square feet for its own operation, bringing its total office space to 8,400.

The area of the building which Equitable will not be using itself, has been designed to accommodate various professional and commercial tenants.

According to Heister, all improvements to the building and the drive-in units have been completed and Equitable celebrated with a public grand opening Saturday, August 19. cluded by one of the convention's lesser-known operatives, scriptwriter Russ Freeburg. Freeburg, a former Chicago newspaperman, is "the guy who glues everything together," according to one of his colleagues. This includes preparation of some of the speeches and approval or editing of all others, both for content and timing.

Hence, he and his crew provide luminaries at the podium with a minute-by-minute scenario hours before an event occurs. In one case, ABC News reported, Ford was handed the precise language — and the time — to announce passage of a procedural motion, even though the vote had yet to be taken.

And John Wayne, the elder statesman in the GOP box-office parade, was advised to introduce a film on the President with the remark that Nixon is "a great president, and good guy." But Wayne reversed the order of the phrases.

When Freeburg was called by a newsman earlier Wednesday about the demonstration planning, he replied with some annoyance: "There's a balloon drop scheduled. I don't know how many. I don't know who put them there."

But that was before the script had a chance to work, and work well.

For one thing, Rep. Paul N. McCloskey's sole would-be delegate, Tom Mayer of New Mexico, was denied a seat and hence a chance to air his anti-war views. So then it fell to Rep. Manuel Lujan, chairman of the New Mexico delegation to cast the single vote for McCloskey. He dutifully did so, but not before seconding Nixon's nomination and telling the television audience that it was only a matter of state law which kept him from voting for the President as well.

But if Mayer's swift and overwhelming oyster demonstrated the control of Nixon's forces, it took Frank Martin's handwork to add a final touch of free-spending glitter.

Martin, the bearded, 35-year-old operator of a Miami stagecraft firm, spent most of the evening pacing the convention floor, looking wearily — and warily — upward.

He and a 20-man crew had spent nearly 18 hours blowing up some 22,000 red, white and blue balloons and hanging them from the ceiling in 11 massive nets, each rigged with a trap door. Would they open "Nobody knows," he said.

"We had to blow them up at my shop, using seven compressors, and truck them over. Now, what happened, is that on one of the expressways, the net opened up."

"When the highway patrol got a call that there were 2,000 balloons all over I-95 at 2 a.m., he said you've gotta be drunk."

At the end, Ford proclaimed Nixon the nominee, the hall exploded in sound, the band played "When the Saints Go Marching In" and the President's wife, two daughters and a son-in-law took in the whole wild scene with bright smiles.

And so did Martin, for his balloons were falling everywhere, exploding like firecrackers.

Fear Giant Columbus Traffic Jam

By MARY SCHEIER
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—If you've got your route all figured out for a Sept. 3 trip to this Ali-American City, be prepared to be flexible.

That's the day the Cincinnati Bengals and the Cleveland Browns play an exhibition professional football game at Ohio State University stadium.

It's also the second-to-the-last day of the 1972 Ohio State Fair. It's the first time the two events have ever been held on the same day.

And City Traffic Engineer James Musick says, "I hope it'll be the last."

Musick and other traffic officials here expect at least a quarter of a million people to be here for the two events.

If the officials have their way, the two streams of traffic will be like two ships that pass in the night—they'll never meet, but will follow carefully designed exit directions to keep jam-ups to a minimum and traffic flow smooth — relatively peaking.

All 85,000 stadium seats for the football game are sold. And last year 254,000 people attended the fair's final Sunday. Columbus Police Sergeant Orville Bell said.

There'll be 195 city police on various traffic assignments that day, along with 33 Ohio Highway Patrolmen, two helicopters, and five staffers from the city traffic engineers office.

Musick outlined the highway battle plan:

All football traffic coming from northern Ohio will be directed off Interstate 270 onto State Route 315, Olentangy River Road, which passes near the stadium.

The first stretch of Olentangy River Road, two-lane and two-way, will be made one-way south toward the stadium.

Football traffic coming from southern Ohio will be sent onto the Sandusky leg of I-71 onto Olentangy River Road.

Fair traffic will be sent onto I-71 from the downtown area.

"We hope to keep fair traffic on the east side of town and the Olentangy River," Musick said, "and keep the football traffic on the west side."

Musick said special lead-in signs will be put on I-71.

If you're going to the football game, look for a sign with a football, and follow the accompanying arrows.

On that same marker, there'll be an electric sign for the state fair.

The three fair signs are controlled by radio out of Musick's office. An Ohio State Patrolman hovering in a helicopter over the freeway will radio traffic conditions to Columbus Police and police will relay the reports to Musick's office.

The signs read "Fairgrounds Parking Use Exit No.—and —." The engineer's office will change exit numbers according to conditions.

CWRU Scientists Develop Miniature Metal Detector

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—A solid-state metal detector small enough to be held in the palm of one hand may be too small, one of two Case Western Reserve University staff members who developed the instrument said Tuesday.

Dr. Dov Hazony, professor of electrical sciences and applied physics at the school, said that airline security officials, police and industrial representatives who viewed a demonstration of the device Tuesday felt it was too small.

"The thing could be marketed the way it is," Dr. Hazony said. "But the airlines thought it should be made bigger."

He said airline representatives felt the small detector, sensitive enough to pick up the small amount of tin foil on a pack of cigarettes, would take too long to check passengers.

"When you get it bigger, you get it a little deeper in its ability to detect," Dr. Hazony said. "It could take too long to frisk passengers."

But he said enlarging the device he built with fellow worker Abe Zevi is "a minor problem."

"The present metal detection devices used in airports are bulky and often unreliable," said Dr. Hazony. He said his small version is "more reliable."

His device utilizes high frequency sound waves which "bounce back" if any type of metal is found and then activates a buzzer. It operates on a regular battery, similar to those in transistor radios.

"We feel large groups of persons could be checked quite easily and quickly by taking the device and just passing it by them," he said. "Then if any metal is found, security personnel were concerned, full-scale search could be undertaken."

Dr. Hazony, who has applied for U.S. patents on the device, said he has several companies interested in manufacturing it. He estimated it could be produced commercially for under $30.

Professor Believes Men Deserve Special Study, Too

By RUTH ANN RAGLAND
Associated Press Writer

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — A Women's Studies program is funded at the University of New Mexico, and a male professor says that what's good for the goose is good for the gander.

Dr. Richard F. Tomasson, chairman of the Sociology Department, who says he's changed at least 50 per cent of his three kids' diapers, is calling for equal time and equal money for the men.

He said the idea of a Women's Studies is "absolutely silly," but if the women are going to have it, the men should too.

He's submitted his proposed curriculum for Men's Studies, complete with courses covering the "Mythology of Male Superiority" and "The Legal Status of American Men," to the university curriculum committee. But he said he hasn't received an official response.

He said his latest greeting is, "Whose husband are you?"

Tomasson maintains the Women's Lib movement has merit in advocating equal pay and equal treatment in careers. And he says "We should get rid of sexual linkage for occupations."

He said he performs house duties such as dish washing, cooking and helping with the children. Boys, "liberated of course," ages 9, 10, and 13.

He doesn't iron, but then, "my wife never irons either."

Tomasson said he unquestionably would have hired a male secretary had one applied for the job.

There might be some impending discrimination against men "with all this business of hiring women" he said.

On the subject of "Ms.," Tomasson said it should be ditched in preference for just plain "M."

"It is pronounced mmmmm."

for the presidency in 1976. In Convention Hall, meanwhile, delegates moved quickly to the major business, the re-nomination of Nixon, after finishing the preliminaries in an afternoon session that ran nearly five hours.

At 9:46 p.m. EDT, Chairman Gerald R. Ford signaled the start of the roll call for presidential nominations. By 11:02 p.m. he was declaring Nixon the nominee.

The nominating speech for the President was delivered by his erstwhile-rival-turned-booster, New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller. He declared: "We need this man of action, this man of accomplishment, this man of experience, this man of courage."

Then came the 11 seconds, ranging from the conservative Buckley to liberal former Interior Secretary Walter J. Hickel, who was fired from the Cabinet by Nixon two years ago, to a trio of Democrats, including the wife of Milwaukee Mayor Henry Maier.

Fifty minutes had elapsed when Anne Armstrong of Texas, co-chairman of the Republican National Committee and the convention secretary, began to call the roll for voting.

The Nixon tally mounted steadily until Missouri put Nixon over the top in a vote that its chairman, Lawrence K. Roos, said showed "its regard for Sen. Tom Eagleton." McGovern dropped Eagleton as a running-mate after the Missouri senator disclosed his medical history.

Alioto Loses Bid For Venue Change

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Mayor Joseph L. Alioto has lost a bid to have the retrial of his $12.5 million libel suit against Look magazine moved from San Francisco.

U.S. District Court Judge Russell E. Smith denied with out comment Monday Alioto's request for a change of venue. The trial is set to open Sept. 8 before Smith.

Republican Platform Proves Troublesome

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Not everything at the carefully staged Republican National Convention has followed the script. Least of all the elevator-type platform.

The small, rectangular area of the platform which is supposed to move up and down to keep all speakers at the same height, repeatedly went awry on Monday.

Business Briefs

Equitable Federal Savings and Loan has more than doubled the size of its Lancaster office according to Carl Heister, vice president.

Equitable has added approximately 18,500 square feet to its building. Of the addition, Equitable will retain approximately 4,600 square feet for its own operation, bringing its total office space to 8,400.

The area of the building which Equitable will not be using itself, has been designed to accommodate various professional and commercial tenants.

According to Heister, all improvements to the building and the drive-in units have been completed and Equitable celebrated with a public grand opening Saturday, August 19. Following the grand opening will be a two week gala of gift give-aways including a grand prize drawing for a trip to Disney World.

Heister said that the architect was A. C. Lenardy of Columbus. Don M. Hussy Co. of Columbus was the general contractor.

He Won't Call Wife By Her First Name

DEAR ABBY: I am married to a man who has not called me by my first name for the past 20 years.

If the phone rings and it's for me, he will look at me and say, "Telephone."

He will ask, "What do you want from the store?" Or, "Who's coming over?"

At times he communicates with me through the children by saying, "Tell your mother, etc."

Yes, I have asked him hundreds of times to kindly use my name. His answer, "Why is it so important to you?"

Abby, I can't make him understand. This name quirk of his applies only to me. He calls everyone else by their names, even the dog!

Why should a man refuse to call his wife by her first name?

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — What will you be seeing in prime-time television when the new season starts next month?

More action and adventure, blockbuster films and original movies; less comedy and variety; and very little news.

The three networks already are displaying the "promos" or station-break commercials that herald the attractions of the new season. These teasers make the new series look so good that a wag has suggested that the networks cancel the series and play only the promos.

Alas, the product is not always as good as the ads.

The programming that prevails will probably reflect the mixture as before. In fact, Variety has already tagged the 1972-73 season "Son of Last Year."

The three networks have scheduled the new season pretty much in character.

CBS, which has remained No. 1 in ratings with the help of its situation comedies, will offer 11 in the new season, including five new ones.

NBC, which believes firmly in the long form, will be presenting more 90-minute and two hour dramas.

ABC, which as the No. 3 network must try harder, continues to be more adventurous in its programming, with such a departure as pro football in prime time.

All three networks have an impressive bag of theatrical films to offer. ABC paid many millions for "True Grit," "Patton," "Lawrence of Arabia," "Goldfinger," "The Odd Couple," "Dr. Dolittle" and "Z."

NBC's movies include "In the Heat of the Night," "The Anderson Tapes," "The Andromeda Strain," "Marooned," "The Green Berets," "Cactus Flower" and "It's a Mad, Mad, Mad, Mad World."

CBS has "Around the World in 80 Days," "The Dirty Dozen," "Goodbye, Mr. Chips" (the musical version) and "Oklahoma!"

Most of these blockbusters will be presented early in the season. The strategy is obvious: The networks want to amass big ratings at the start of the rating race and hamper the regular programming of the opposition.

This is likely to be the last season of the blockbuster films on television. Nearly all have now been sold to the networks, and the film studios simply aren't making them any more.

Besides, the networks have found that ratings with made-for-TV movies can be as good or better than the high-priced theatrical films.

Colleges Await Non-Residency Cost Decision

By GARY LUHR
Associated Press Writer

College administrators throughout the country are waiting anxiously to see if the courts will strike down higher tuition costs for nonresident students at state-supported institutions.

Meanwhile, Kentucky and most of its neighbors have taken a new look at their residency requirements and, in some cases, made major revisions within the past year.

The Kentucky Council on Public Higher Education made only minor changes in its basic guidelines at its meeting in Frankfort this month. More substantial changes have come in Ohio and Tennessee.

New rules agreed to last week by the Tennessee State Board of Education were prompted partly by suits filed against the University of Tennessee and Memphis State University challenging the state's dual tuition system.

"It is imperative that we have a sound definition of out-of-state students to take to court," said Memphis State President C.C. Humphreys.

So far, Tennessee is the only nearby state where such suits have been filed, although there have been others around the country.

If the dual system were declared unconstitutional, Kentucky would stand to lose nearly $7 million while its neighbors could lose more than $60 million.

As a general rule of thumb most states in this area require at least a year's residence to qualify for in-state tuition or adequate proof that a student or his parents, who move to a state, plan to live there permanently.

An Associated Press survey revealed the following guidelines for the eight-state area:

KENTUCKY

Kentucky policy, adopted four years ago, says only that a student must have established or maintained residence in the commonwealth "immediately preceding his original enrollment." If he leaves the state in the middle of a school year he is charged nonresident tuition beginning with the start of the next semester.

If a student is under 18, the rules apply to his parents. Students over 18 who come from another state and seek resident status must prove they intend to make Kentucky their permanent home by buying property, getting a fulltime job or some other means.

TENNESSEE

Tennessee's new rules require 12 months residence prior to enrollment or proof that the student or his parents plan to live in the state permanently. One of the new rules, however, allows students already enrolled, whose parents move from the state, to retain their resident status so long as their enrollment is continuous.

Underground Nuclear Explosion Recorded

WASHINGTON (AP) — Seismic signals, presumably from the sixth Soviet underground nuclear explosion this year, were recorded during the week-end.

An Atomic Energy Commission spokesman said Monday the test, if it was one, could have been a nonweapon blasting device because it was in an area not rated as a weapons-proving grounds.

Dr. John Folger, executive director of the Tennessee Higher Education Commission, said loss of nonstate tuition could total $8 million.

OHIO

Ohio's requirements, adopted last December, basically parallel Tennessee's by requiring 12 months residency or proof of permanence prior to enrolling.

Dwane Rogers, director of management information for the Ohio Board of Regents, said loss of out-of-state tuition could total $25 million to $30 million.

INDIANA

The Indiana State Commission for Higher Education, established last September, is studying ways to standardize residency policies now set by individual schools.

Indiana University, the state's major institution, last month adopted new rules which require 12 months residence immediately prior to the beginning of classes. The previous requirement was six months.

The new rules permit a minor student to waive the 12-month requirement if his parents establish permanent residence. Previously a family had to live in the state six months regardless of its intent to stay there.

Unlike Kentucky, students who otherwise would be non-residents can't gain resident status by marriage. At the same time Indiana students may continue to pay resident fees if they marry someone outside the state. In fact, once a student is accepted as a resident he retains that status indefinitely, even if he drops out of school and leaves the state.

Deputy Commissioner Richard Gohman said a recent study concluded Indiana would lose about $11 million annually without nonresident tuition.

WEST VIRGINIA

West Virginia guidelines, which went into effect last fall, also require 12 months residence prior to registration or proof of permanence. Asked how much money would be lost if out-of-state fees were abolished, a spokesman for the state board of regents replied only, "a lot."

ILLINOIS

Each school in Illinois sets its own policy, but most require a minimum six months residence by a student, or his parents if the student is under 21. Loss of revenue from abolishing out-of-state fees was estimated at $7.5 million.

VIRGINIA

Individual schools also determine resident status in Virginia, but largely it follows criteria used for determining voting status and involves proof of residency permanence. It is estimated the state would lose $9.5 million without nonresident fees.

MISSOURI

Resident status in Missouri requires living in the state 12 months. There was no available estimate how much would be lost if out-of-state fees were abolished.

West Virginia guidelines, which went into effect last fall, also require 12 months residence prior to registration or proof of permanence. Asked how much money would be lost if out-of-state fees were abolished, a spokesman for the state board of regents replied only, "a lot."

ILLINOIS

Each school in Illinois sets its own policy, but most require a minimum six months residence by a student, or his parents if the student is under 21. Loss of revenue from abolishing out-of-state fees was estimated at $7.5 million.

VIRGINIA

Individual schools also determine resident status in Virginia, but largely it follows criteria used for determining voting status and involves proof of residency permanence. It is estimated the state would lose $9.5 million without nonresident fees.

MISSOURI

Resident status in Missouri requires living in the state 12 months. There was no available estimate how much would be lost if out-of-state fees were abolished.

Camper Licenses Too Cheap?

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Registrar Donald Curry of the Bureau of Motor Vehicles says he will ask the legislature to close a legal loophole under which licenses for campers are cheaper than passenger car tags.

Licenses for both towed and self-propelled campers are $5 a year because, under Ohio law, they are considered "house vehicles," Curry said. Passenger car licenses are $10.

Licensing laws for house vehicles date back to the 1930s, Curry explained, and were intended only as a charge on semipermanent house trailers seldom moved over the highways.

He said vehicles like campers should be charged according to size on a weight-horsepower ratio using the same formula as truck licenses.

Curry estimated such a ratio probably would put license fees for campers in the range of $10 to $50 a year.

The registrar said his office is preparing a number of recommendations for the General Assembly regarding licensing fees and regulations.

One would increase the $30 charge to auto dealerships for a business license and the $5 charge for each salesman. Curry said the fees don't come close to paying the state's paperwork costs in processing car sales.

Camper Licenses Too Cheap?

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Registrar Donald Curry of the Bureau of Motor Vehicles says he will ask the legislature to close a legal loophole under which licenses for campers are cheaper than passenger car tags.

Licenses for both towed and self-propelled campers are $5 a year because, under Ohio law, they are considered "house vehicles," Curry said. Passenger car licenses are $10.

Licensing laws for house vehicles date back to the 1930s, Curry explained, and were intended only as a charge on semipermanent house trailers seldom moved over the highways.

He said vehicles like campers should be charged according to size on a weight-horsepower ratio using the same formula as truck licenses.

Curry estimated such a ratio probably would put license fees for campers in the range of $10 to $50 a year.

The registrar said his office is preparing a number of recommendations for the General Assembly regarding licensing fees and regulations.

One would increase the $30 charge to auto dealerships for a business license and the $5 charge for each salesman, Curry said the fees don't come close to paying the state's paperwork costs in processing car sales.

Nixon Hopes For Clean Election Fight On Major Issues

Dog Fight Ends With Officer Bitten

MILWAUKEE (AP) — It began as a sidewalk dog fight Monday and developed into a neighborhood altercation during which a peace-seeking patrolman was bitten, but not by a dog.

Policeman Howard Lindstedt was treated at a hospital for tooth marks in the forearm. He said a woman bit him as he tried to calm five persons in a dispute over whose pet had started the fight.

Editor's Note: What course will President Nixon's re-election campaign follow? Gaylord Shaw, who covers the President, outlines the way that Nixon hopes will lead him to victory in November's presidential election.

By GAYLORD SHAW
Associated Press Writer
MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — President Nixon, leaning over the wide desk in his White House office, set the tone of his re-election campaign strategy.

"Regardless of what the polls show, whether we are ahead or behind, this will be a close, hard-fought election right down to the wire," he told a group of newsmen three weeks before his renomination at the Republican National Convention.

"People who make predictions now could look very, very bad later. We are going to assume throughout this election that we have a very hard fight on our hands. We think it will be close and we hope to win."

Translated, the message Nixon is flashing to his political lieutenants is this: We're running scared. We're ahead now, but we expect that lead to slip. We're taking nothing for granted.

The Nixon strategy is keyed to combining victory in large, electoral vote-rich states with sweeps in the smaller Midwestern and Southern states.

If he carries four big states — California, New York, Texas and Illinois — Nixon will have more than half the electoral vote total he needs. But his advisers say he should run so well in the South and Midwest that he could afford to lose one or two of the bigger states and still ride to an easy victory.

Nixon himself has indicated to aides that he considers California crucial to his re-election chances. That is one reason Clark MacGregor has made two trips to California since taking over as campaign chief July 1.

The President won't campaign in all 50 states, but instead will concentrate on the larger states with fatter electoral vote prizes. Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, Cabinet members and other administration officials will carry the campaign load to smaller states.

Ten days before the GOP convention began, a Louis Harris poll showed Nixon with a 57-34 per cent lead over Sen. George McGovern, the Democratic nominee.

But this didn't budge the Nixon camp from its avowed caution.

"We were way ahead of Hubert Humphrey in '68, but we almost got beat," said one Republican strategist who, like most Nixon associates, remembers well the fast-closing Democratic campaign four years ago.

Nixon himself has decreed that he wants the campaign to be "a good, hard, clean fight on the issues."

A key factor in the decision to focus on the issues is the recognition that Nixon's policies seem more popular than Nixon the man.

"Let's face it," said one GOP strategist, "our man is not the political charmer that Eisenhower was."

But he ticked off polls which show strong public approval of Nixon's actions, especially in foreign affairs.

The centerpiece of the President's record is what Republicans view as Nixon-initiated steps toward a new era of peace. Specifically, the campaign will make heavy use of the President's break-through trip to China and his follow-up journey to the Soviet Union.

Democrats see Vietnam as a flaw in Nixon's image as a peacemaker. McGovern, in his early campaigning, criticized him for failing to keep his 1968 promise to end the war and he seemed to place Nixon spokesmen on the defensive.

The campaign plea for understanding on Vietnam likely will be coupled with a sharp attack on those, McGovern especially, whose statements on Vietnam are viewed by Republicans as undercutting Nixon's negotiating position.

Even before Nixon's formal renomination, the President's forces were striving to put McGovern on the defensive over his economic proposals.

In a harbinger of full-fledged campaign attacks, McGovern resurrected McGovern's $1,000 per person income grant suggestion and charged it "would split America permanently into a welfare class and a working class."

Nixon is expected to charge that McGovern's economic proposals would result in massive tax increases or require major, inflation-spurring budget deficits.

At the same time, Nixon will recite favorable economic indicators to contend that his administration is winning the war against inflation.

Nixon also has signaled his intention to make a campaign issue of the Democratic-controlled Congress' lack of action on major administration proposals such as welfare reform and of its tendency to vote more funds than he requested.

One Republican goal is to give Nixon a "more tractable Congress" if he wins a second term. As part of this effort, the campaign's radio-television advertising budget was cut by $3.5 million a few weeks before the convention and the money shifted to grass roots organizing where it can have more impact on congressional races.

Nixon is likely to make some weekend campaign trips near the end of September but probably will do little full-time campaigning until after Congress adjourns in the fall.

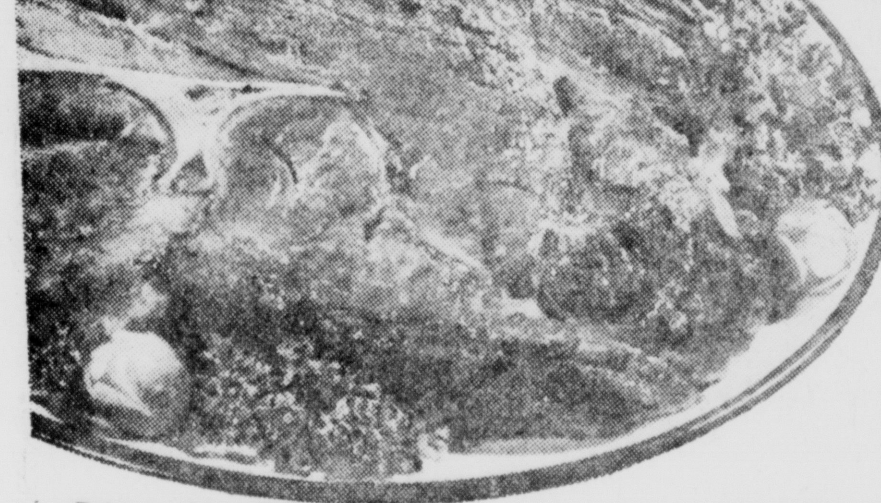

Meanwhile, he will be tending to his White House duties.

Jewish Defense League Threatens Kidnaps

Jerusalem (AP) — Rabbi Meir Kahane says his militant Jewish Defense League will kidnap Soviet diplomats in the United States if the Soviet Union does not stop imposing special fees on emigrating Jews.

Kahane told a news conference Monday that he wrote Secretary of State William P. Rogers and urged him to take "quiet and energetic steps" against the Soviet practice.

Nixon Hopes For Clean Election Fight On Major Issues

Dog Fight Ends With Officer Bitten

MILWAUKEE (AP) — It began as a sidewalk dog fight Monday and developed into a neighborhood altercation during which a peace-seeking patrolman was bitten, but not by a dog.

Policeman Howard Lindstedt was treated at a hospital for tooth marks in the forearm. He said a woman bit him as he tried to calm five persons in a dispute over whose pet had started the fight.

Editor's Note: What course will President Nixon's re-election campaign follow? Gaylord Shaw, who covers the President, outlines the way that Nixon hopes will lead him to victory in November's presidential election.

By GAYLORD SHAW
Associated Press Writer
MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — President Nixon, leaning over the wide desk in his White House office, set the tone of his re-election campaign strategy.

"Regardless of what the polls show, whether we are ahead or behind, this will be a close, hard-fought election right down to the wire," he told a group of newsmen three weeks before his renomination at the Republican National Convention.

"People who make predictions now could look very, very bad later. We are going to assume throughout this election that we have a very hard fight on our hands. We think it will be close and we hope to win." Translated, the message Nixon is flashing to his political lieutenants is this: We're running scared. We're ahead now, but we expect that lead to slip. We're taking nothing for granted.

The Nixon strategy is keyed to combining victory in large, electoral vote-rich states with sweeps in the smaller Midwestern and Southern states.

If he carries four big states — California, New York, Texas and Illinois — Nixon will have more than half the electoral vote total he needs. But his advisers say he should run so well in the South and Midwest that he could afford to lose one or two of the bigger states and still ride to an easy victory.

Nixon himself has indicated to aides that he considers California crucial to his re-election chances. That is one reason Clark MacGregor has made two trips to California since taking over as campaign chief July 1.

The President won't campaign in all 50 states, but instead will concentrate on the larger states with fatter electoral vote prizes. Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, Cabinet members and other administration officials will carry the campaign load to smaller states.

Ten days before the GOP convention began, a Louis Harris poll showed Nixon with a 57-34 per cent lead over Sen. George McGovern, the Democratic nominee.

But this didn't budge the Nixon camp from its avowed caution.

"We were way ahead of Hubert Humphrey in '68, but we almost got beat," said one Republican strategist who, like most Nixon associates, remembers well the fast-closing Democratic campaign four years ago.

Nixon himself has decreed that he wants the campaign to be "a good, hard, clean fight on the issues."

A key factor in the decision to focus on the issues is the recognition that Nixon's policies seem more popular than Nixon the man.

"Let's face it," said one GOP strategist, "our man is not the political charmer that Eisenhower was."

But he ticked off polls which show strong public approval of Nixon's actions, especially in foreign affairs.

The centerpiece of the President's record is what Republicans view as Nixon-initiated steps toward a new era of peace. Specifically, the campaign will make heavy use of the President's break-through trip to China and his follow-up journey to the Soviet Union.

Democrats see Vietnam as a flaw in Nixon's image as a peacemaker. McGovern, in his early campaigning, criticized him for failing to keep his 1968 promise to end the war and he seemed to place Nixon spokesmen on the defensive.

The campaign plea for understanding on Vietnam likely will be coupled with a sharp attack on those, McGovern especially, whose statements on Vietnam are viewed by Republicans as undercutting Nixon's negotiating position.

Even before Nixon's formal renomination, the President's forces were striving to put McGovern on the defensive over his economic proposals.

In a harbinger of full-fledged campaign attacks, MacGregor resurrected McGovern's $1,000 per person income grant suggestion and charged it "would split America permanently into a welfare class and a working class."

Nixon is expected to charge that McGovern's economic proposals would result in massive tax increases or require major, inflation-spurring budget deficits.

At the same time, Nixon will recite favorable economic indicators to contend that his administration is winning the war against inflation.

Nixon also has signaled his intention to make a campaign issue of the Democratic-controlled Congress' lack of action on major administration proposals such as welfare reform and of its tendency to vote more funds than he requested.

One Republican goal is to give Nixon a "more tractable Congress" if he wins a second term. As part of this effort, the campaign's radio-television advertising budget was cut by $3.5 million a few weeks before the convention and the money shifted to grass roots organizing where it can have more impact on congressional races.

Nixon is likely to make some weekend campaign trips near the end of September but probably will do little full-time campaigning until after Congress adjourns in the fall.

Meanwhile, he will be tending to his White House duties.

Jewish Defense League Threatens Kidnaps

Jerusalem (AP) — Rabbi Meir Kahane says his militant Jewish Defense League will kidnap Soviet diplomats in the United States if the Soviet Union does not stop imposing special fees on emigrating Jews.

Kahane told a news conference Monday that he wrote Secretary of State William P. Rogers and urged him to take "quiet and energetic steps" against the Soviet practice.

Plummer, Bench Help Reds Past Montreal Expos, 5-3

MONTREAL (AP) — "It sure felt good," said Bill Plummer after hitting his first major league home run and finding a slot after playing bridesmaid on two baseball teams in four years. The home run was not decisive, but it was insurance as the Red widened their winning lead to 5-3 in the ninth inning.

Reds Manager Sparky Anderson announced that Plummer will platoon with John Bench, who also homered — his 28th and 90th run batted in — when Cincinnati hits against southpaws.

Both Bench and Plummer are right-hand hitters. Bench will play right field, said Anderson, noting that Plummer has caught the last seven games, with Cincinnati winning six.

Plummer has hit 9-for-30 in the stint, collecting four runs batted in.

"I usually watch John play," said Plummer dryly after riding the boards in 1970 and part of 1971 and 1972. He appeared in only one game for the Chicago Cubs in 1968.

Plummer said Bench, his roommate, "helps me a lot."

Bench tells him how to pitch certain batters and what opposing pitchers are likely to throw. "He's done an excellent job," said Anderson, "he'll probably catch the rest of the year when the Reds play lefthanders."

Bench hit his two-run homer in the first inning and Pete Rose hit another in the sixth, posting a 4-0 lead that lasted until Ross Grimsley, 11-6, was bombed for two home runs and three runs in the seventh inning.

Pedro Borbon relieved, picking up his ninth save, holding the Expos scoreless for the last three innings.

The victory put Cincinnati 8½ games in front of the Houston Astros in the Western Division of the National League and increases their unlikely away from home record to 45-17 while holding an almost even 28-26 record at home.

CHAMPS — Circleville Oil by Du Pont "D" Shift and the left Dave Hannahs, Kelly Ty Ankrom, Bob Parker, Terry Tomlinson Electric and Boyer, Jim Moorehead, Robert Morgan's Sporting Goods tied slow pitch season with a 21-1 record to take the championship trophy. American Legion placed second in the league followed Softball team. First row, from

Backs Say Raider Line 'Great'

OAKLAND (AP) — The Oakland Raiders' running backs are standing in line to second Bob Brown, the big offensive tackle whose blocking makes their lives happier.

"I've played on some great offensive lines, but this is by far the best," says Brown, the 6-foot-4, 280-pound veteran starting his second season with the Raiders.

"We've got a great team leader in Jim Otto and a great athlete and leader in Gene Upshaw," Brown continues. "We've got the makings of a really great year."

The Raiders offensive had a great year in 1971, even with Brown out part of the season with a knee injury and guard Jim Harvey bothered by a bad back. Oakland runners averaged 4.5 yards per carry and the team's point total of 344 was second to Dallas in the National Football League.

On defense, however, the Raiders suffered two injuries they could not afford. Tackle Tom Keating and linebacker Gus Otto each missed about half the season, and Oakland opponents discovered some vulnerable spots because of their absence.

Coach John Madden is counting on more defensive depth this year and hoping for better luck in the injury department.

Offensively, the Raiders seem to have everything going for them. The strength starts with the line, and quarterback Darle Lamonica has a wealth of receivers and running backs to work with.

Fullback Marv Hubbard became a starter for the first time last year and ran for 867 yards behind Brown and his brawny friends. Fred Biletni-

Pickaway DuPont Wins In Tourney At Chillicothe

Pickaway DuPont moved closer to the championship at the Chillicothe Major League tournament as Chucky Cave hurled a 5-0 shutout against Clarksburg Tuesday.

Cave fired the first six innings off the hill allowing only two hits, walking two and fanning six while Lynn Strehle came on in the seventh inning to strike out two batters.

Tim McDonald was on the mound for the Clarksburg crew permitting six hits, walking two and striking out nine.

McDonald cracked a single along with his team mate Jeff Gallagher accounting for the two Clarksburg hits.

THE DuPonters and Tim Collins blasting a homerun and a single Chucky Cave rapped a pair of one baggers and John Metler and Chris Fouch each singled.

There are now four teams remaining in the Chillicothe Tournament from the original 26. Londonderry and Richmond Dale will still be sitting in the winners bracket until 8 p.m. tonight when one team will be dropped to the losers' bracket.

The DuPonters will be up against the winners of the Chillicothe Merchants Frankfurt game which was played Tuesday in the losers bracket. Then the winner of the game played in the losers bracket will have to play the loser from the Londonderry-Richmond Dale game Thursday to decide who will battle for the championship.

The team in the winners bracket will only be required to win one game in the championship tilt while the team representing the losers bracket will have to win two straight in the Championship games.

Pickaway DuPont now has five tournament wins, four straight shutouts, and stand 6-1 in the Chillicothe Tournament. DuPont was beaten by the Chillicothe Merchants earlier in the Tournament. The DuPonters will have Tony Crist on the mound tonight with Lynn Strehle or Chucky Cave ready to come on in relief if needed when they take the field at 6 p.m. at the Scioto Valley Little League park.

shaw are two of the best at their positions. Tight end Ray Chester is also an all-pro candidate, after catching 70 passes for 998 yards his first two seasons.

Lamonica played most of 1971 with an injured hand but still held the No. 1 quarterback spot, with relief help from George Blanda and Ken Stabler.

This year, besides a healthy passing hand, Lamonica may have receiver Warren Wells and running back Charlie Smith back. Wells, who caught 36 touchdown passes in his last three seasons, spent last fall in jail after he violated probation terms. Smith, who ran for 681 yards in 1970, was injured last year.

Lamonica threw only 16 touchdown passes last season, after tossing 111 in his first four years as the Raiders' quarterback.

But Oakland still scored a lot of points in rolling to an 8-4-2 record and second place in the Western Division of the American Football Conference.

Second place was a shock after four straight division titles for the team that has never aimed for anything less than a Super Bowl championship.

If the Raiders' defense has improved enough—perhaps matured is the proper word—the team could get another shot at the big game, which it lost to Green Bay, 33-14, in 1968.

Madden started three rookies on defense last year, but still relied heavily on such veterans as Keating, middle linebacker Dan Conners and defensive backs Willie Brown and Nemeiah Wilson.

Safety Jack Tatum, linebacker Phil Villapiano and defensive end Horace Jones were the 1971 rookie starters.

Pirates Blank Giants; Win 1-0

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Nelson Briles of the Pittsburgh Pirates has done some acting during the off-season, but never played the role of Superman.

He looked every bit the part Tuesday night, though, when pitching against the San Francisco Giants.

"It's really a funny feeling to be happy and disappointed at the same time," said Briles after losing a perfect-game bid in the seventh inning and winding up with a one-hitter to beat the Giants 1-0.

That one hit—a line drive by Ken Henderson off first baseman Willie Stargell's glove—runner off Briles, an actor and night club performer when he isn't playing baseball.

"There's nothing wrong with beating Juan Marichal 1-0," said Briles. "But I'm disappointed because I came so close and had it go down."

Pittsburgh stayed 11½ games

in front of New York in the National League East race. The Mets also won Tuesday night, beating the Houston Astros 4-2 for the second straight time.

Elsewhere, the Cincinnati Reds moved to an 8½-game advantage in the West over Houston by stopping the Montreal Expos 5-3; the Atlanta Braves trimmed the Philadelphia Phillies 11-7; the Chicago Cubs defeated the San Diego Padres 4-3 and the Los Angeles Dodgers nipped the St. Louis Cardinals 1-0.

Briles, winning his 12th game in 17 decisions this year, retired the first 20 Giants before Henderson ripped one off Stargell's glove. It extended Henderson's hitting streak to 18 games.

"It was real well, but in my own mind I should have caught it," said Stargell, who doubled in the game's only run in the first. "There was just no time to stick the glove up. It was one of those things. I didn't talk to Briles about it—what could I say?"

Second baseman Dave Cash and shortstop Jackie Hernandez earlier made some great plays to steal potential San Francisco hits. Then Rennie Stennett made a leaping catch in left field off Bobby Bonds' bat for the final out.

Jim Beauchamp came through with his second game-winning hit in as many nights for New York.

"I can't expect things to go on like this—but at least I'm contributing for a change," said Beauchamp, who drove in all four Met runs Tuesday night, including two with a single in the eighth inning that decided it.

Beauchamp's big night helped New York ace Tom Seaver win his 15th game while outdueling Dave Roberts. Seaver's complete game was the 100th of his career.

Johnny Bench, Pete Rose and Bill Plummer slugged home runs to power Cincinnati past Montreal, sparking elation from Reds Manager Sparky Anderson.

"We are in a position where we can win the National League West pennant by ourselves now," said Anderson. "We're 10 games up in the loss column and that's all I'm worried about. I'm not worried about the other column."

Jim Brezale hit a three-run homer with two out in the ninth inning as Atlanta rallied for seven runs after two out to beat Philadelphia.

"We haven't scored that many runs in a week," laughed Atlanta Manager Edie Matthews.

Ferguson Jenkins fashioned a six-hitter, pitching Chicago over San Diego. The right-hander hasn't lost to the Padres in 11 lifetime decisions.

Al Downing scattered nine hits and recorded his third shutout this season while leading Los Angeles over St. Louis. The Cardinals' Lou Brock stole his 50th base of the season in the sixth inning to tie a major league record set by Ty Cobb of 50 or more steals a year for eight years.

Tribe Wins, 3-1; Pennant Fever Runs High

The top of the division remained unchanged with Detroit losing to Oakland 6-3, Baltimore bowing to California 2-0 and New York losing to Chicago 5-4.

Fourth place Boston tried valiantly to snatch defeat from the jaws of victory but didn't quiet make it, beating Kansas City 10-7. In the other AL game, Texas trimmed Milwaukee 2-1, keeping the Brewers a mere 17 games behind.

Detroit began the month of August atop the AL East and the Tigers are still there despite a woeful 8-15 log over the last three weeks. The slump has, of course, cost the leaders. Surging Baltimore, 10-13 this month, has chopped two game off the lead to move within one-half game of the lead.

The status remained quo with Oakland using homers by Angel Mangual, Blue Moon Odom and Joe Rudi to defeat Detroit and Mickey Lolich Tuesday night while Nolan Ryan's four-hitter pushed California past Baltimore.

The Tigers and A's stirred some extracurricular excitement with a seventh inning brawl that started when reliever Bill Slayback buzzed a pitch to close for Mangual's comfort. The A's outfielder said Tiger Manager Billy Martin was the culprit.

"I never fight in my life," said Mangual. "I heard Martin tell the catcher to have the pitcher knock me down. If he tries to hit me, what do I do. I've got to protect myself."

Mangual rushed Slayback and the brawl was on with fights breaking out all over the field.

Oakland's victory kept the A's one-half game ahead of Chicago in the AL West. The White Sox erased a four-run New York lead and beat the Yankees with Dick Allen's 31st home run of the season deciding the game.

It was the fifth loss in the last seven games for New York but the Yankees have lost no ground during that slide and remain only 1½ games behind Detroit. New York, with a 13-10 record for August has clipped four games off the Tigers' lead.

Boston raised its August record to 12-10, impressive in the AL East, by holding off Kansas City. The Red Sox, seven games back of the Tigers when the month began, are now just 2½ behind.

The Red Sox gave Marty Pattin an early five-run cushion against KC with Carl Yastrzemski's third-inning homer providing two of the runs. Boston built the edge to 9-2 but the Royals kayoed Pattin with two runs in the eighth and three more in the ninth before Don Newhauser came on to get the final out.

Ryan stifled Baltimore, striking out 11 batters along the way and ending a personal four-game losing streak.

The Angels gave him the only run he needed in the third inning when Sandy Alomar tripled and scored on Bob Oliver's sacrifice fly. Two-out doubles by Oliver and Ken McMullen in the seventh inning gave California its other run.

Gaylord Perry won his 19th game for Cleveland as the Indians raised their August record to 14-9, best in the division.

They have sliced five games off the 11½-game deficit they faced at the start of the month.

Tom McCraw's two-out single in the bottom of the ninth inning delivered the deciding run for the Indians. Jim Nettles and Bobby Darwin homered for Minnesota.

Rich Hand allowed just two hits in 8 1-3 innings but needed help from reliever Casey Cox to move Texas past Milwaukee. Dick Billings and Larry Bietner doubled home runs for the Rangers.

Randy Johnson Sidelined By Collarbone Separation

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A separation of the collarbone has knocked New York Giants' No. 1 quarterback Randy Johnson out of action, although the injury is not as serious as the one which recently sidelined Dallas passer Roger Staubach.

Johnson, who took over the starting role when the Giants traded Fran Tarkenton to Minnesota following the 1971 National Football League season, suffered the separation just below the shoulder of his throwing arm, the team said Tuesday, and will miss at least three weeks of action.

Staubach may miss the entire season season due to his shoulder separation.

The injury occurred on the final play of the Giants' game last Sunday against the New York Jets when Johnson slipped and John Little of the Jets fell on him. The Giants' backup quarterbacks are Ed Baker and Norm Snead.

Injuries were also reported on Tuesday by the Cleveland Browns, Philadelphia Eagles and Los Angeles Rams.

Rookie defensive end Lester Sims, the Browns' second-round draft choice from Alabama State who had been counted on heavily, has apparently been lost for the season, the team said.

He suffered torn cartilage in his right knee Sunday against Detroit and was to undergo surgery today.

The Eagles said middle line-backer Steve Zabel, who gained a starting berth when Tim Rosovich was traded to San Diego, also suffered torn cartilage in his right knee in practice Tuesday. Philadelphia said he is expected to be back in time for the team's regular season opener Sept. 17.

Kermit Alexander, cornerback for the Rams, will be out four to six weeks with a broken elbow suffered in the exhibition game against Oakland.

Among Tuesday's deals, the Green Bay Packers traded second-year defensive end Donell Smith to the St. Louis Cardinals for an undisclosed draft choice and the Rams acquired cornerback Al Clark from the Detroit Lions, also for a draft pick.

And Doug Hart, a defensive back with the Packers during their glory years in the 1960s, announced his retirement after eight seasons.

Lightweight Wins Crown At Trapshoot

VANDALIA, Ohio (AP) — Bob Mieczkowski of Winterville, Ohio, the new Junior Champion of Champions in trapshooting, has to be extra careful on the trap line when it's windy.

In the past a strong wind has blown him off his position.

A handsome blond 16-year-old, Bob, who broke 100 straight during the special race for state champions at the 73rd Grand American Tournament to top all other junior champions, claims he is 5-foot-4 and weighs 115 pounds.

But his father John is quick to add, "If he wears lead shoes."

The Winterville High School junior, who started shooting four years ago, is far from an unknown on the fields where shooters gather. He has been named for the last two years to the Junior All-America selected by trap historian Jimmy Robinson.

Earlier this year at the Southern Zone shoot in Winchester, Va., he broke 100 straight in doubles, the first junior shooter in the history of the sport to reach that mark.

Plummer, Bench Help Reds Past Montreal Expos, 5-3

MONTREAL (AP) — "It sure felt good," said Bill Plummer after hitting his first major league home run and finding a slot after playing bridesmaid on two baseball teams in four years.

The home run was not decisive, but it was insurance as the Red widened their winning lead to 5-3 in the ninth inning.

Reds Manager Sparky Anderson announced that Plummer will platoon with John Bench, who also homered — his 28th and 90th run batted in — when Cincinnati hits against southpaws.

Both Bench and Plummer are right-hand hitters. Bench will play right field, said Anderson, noting that Plummer has caught the last seven games, with Cincinnati winning six.

Plummer has hit 9-for-30 in the stint, collecting four runs batted in.

"I usually watch John play," said Plummer dryly after riding the boards in 1970 and part of 1971 and 1972. He appeared in only one game for the Chicago Cubs in 1968.

Plummer said Bench, his roommate, "helps me a lot."

Bench tells him how to pitch certain batters and what opposing pitchers are likely to throw.

"He's done an excellent job," said Anderson, "he'll probably catch the rest of the year when the Reds play left-handers."

Bench hit his two-run homer in the first inning and Pete Rose hit another in the sixth, posting a 4-0 lead that lasted until Ross Grimsley, 11-6, was bombed for two home runs and three runs in the seventh inning.

Pedro Borbon relieved, picking up his ninth save, holding the Expos scoreless for the last three innings.

The victory put Cincinnati 8½ games in front of the Houston Astros in the Western Division of the National League and increases their unlikely away from home record to 45-17 while holding an almost even 28-26 record at home.

It is a simple mathematical fact of baseball life that if all the teams ahead of you in the standings lose and you win, you'll gain ground.

And that explains how the unlikely American League East pennant race has another applicant today with the Cleveland Indians now just 6½ games behind in the whackiest chase since the Keystone Kops were in business.

The Indians find themselves in the picture after nipping Minnesota 3-2 Tuesday night.

The top of the division remained unchanged with Detroit losing to Oakland 6-3, Baltimore bowing to California 2-0 and New York losing to Chicago 5-4.

Fourth place Boston tried valiantly to snatch defeat from the jaws of victory but didn't make it, beating Kansas City 10-7. In the other AL game, Texas trimmed Milwaukee 2-1, keeping the Brewers a mere 17 games behind.

Detroit began the month of August atop the AL East and the Tigers are still there despite a woeful 8-15 log over the Surging Baltimore, 10-13 this month, has chopped two game off the lead to move within one-half game of the lead.

The status remained quo with Oakland using homers by Angel Mangual, Blue Moon Odom and Joe Rudi to defeat Detroit and Mickey Lolich Tuesday night while Nolan Ryan's four-hitter pushed California past Baltimore.

Oakland's victory kept the A's one-half game ahead of Chicago in the AL West. The White Sox erased a four-run New York lead and beat the Yankees with Dick Allen's 31st home run of the season deciding the game.

It was the fifth loss in the last seven games for New York but the Yanks have lost no ground during that slide and remain only 1½ games behind Detroit. New York, with a 13-10 record for August has clipped four games off the Tigers' lead.

Boston raised its August record to 12-10, impressive in the AL East, by holding off Kansas City. The Red Sox, seven games back of the Tigers when the month began, are now just 2½ behind.

Backs Say Raider Line 'Great'

OAKLAND (AP) — The Oakland Raiders' running backs are standing in line to second Bob Brown, the big offensive tackle whose blocking makes their lives happier.

"I've played on some great offensive lines, but this is by far the best," says Brown, the 6-foot-4, 280-pound veteran starting his second season with the Raiders.

"We've got a great team leader in Jim Otto and a great athlete and leader in Gene Upshaw," Brown continues. "We've got the makings of a really great year."

The Raiders offensive had a great year in 1971, even with Brown out part of the season with a knee injury and guard Jim Harvey bothered by a bad back. Oakland runners averaged 4.5 yards per carry and the team's point total of 344 was second to Dallas in the National Football League.

Fullback Marv Hubbard became a starter for the first time last year and ran for 867 yards behind Brown and his brawny friends. Fred Biletnikoff led NFL receivers with 61 catches, good for 929 yards.

Center Otto and guard Upshaw are two of the best at their positions. Tight end Ray Chester is also an all-pro candidate, after catching 70 passes for 998 yards his first two seasons.

Lamonica played most of 1971 with an injured hand but still held the No. 1 quarterbacking spot, with relief help from George Blanda and Ken Stabler.

This year, besides a healthy passing hand, Lamonica may have receiver Warren Wells and running back Charlie Smith back. Pickaway DuPont Wins In Tourney At Chillicothe

Pickaway DuPont moved closer to the championship at the Chillicothe Major League tournament as Chuck Cave hurled a 5-0 shutout against Clarksburg Tuesday.

Cave fired the first six innings off the hill allowing only two hits, walking two and fanning six while Lynn Strehle came on in the seventh inning to strike out two batters.

Tim McDonald was on the mound for the Clarksburg crew permitting six hits, walking two and striking out nine.

McDonald cracked a single along with his team mate Jeff Gallagher accounting for the two Clarksburg hits.

THE DuPonters and Tim Collins blasting a homerun and a single Chuck Cave rapped a pair of one baggers and John Metter and Chris Fouch each singled.

There are now four teams remaining in the Chillicothe Tournament from the original 26. Londonderry and Richmond Dale will still be sitting in the winners bracket until 8 p.m. tonight when one team will be dropped to the losers' bracket.

The DuPonters will be up against the winners of the Chillicothe Merchants Frankfort game which was played Tuesday in the losers bracket.

Then the winner of the game played in the losers bracket will have to play the loser from the Londonderry-Richmond Dale game Thursday to decide who will battle for the championship.

The team in the winners bracket will only be required to win one game in the championship tilt while the team representing the losers bracket will have to win two straight in the Championship games.

Pickaway DuPont now has five tournament wins, four straight shutouts, and stand 6-1 in the Chillicothe Tournament. DuPont was beaten by the Chillicothe Merchants earlier in the Tournament. The DuPonters will have Tony Crist on the mound tonight with Lynn Strehle or Chuck Cave ready to come on in relief if needed when they take the field at 6 p.m. at the Scioto Valley Little League park.

"It's really a funny feeling to be happy and disappointed at the same time," said Briles after losing a perfect-game bid in the seventh inning and winding up with a one-hitter to beat the Giants 1-0.

That one hit—a line drive by Ken Henderson off first baseman Willie Stargell's glove—ruiner off Briles, an actor and night club performer when he isn't playing baseball.

"There's nothing wrong with beating Juan Marichal 1-0," said Briles. "But I'm disappointed because I came so close and had it go down."

Pittsburgh stayed 11½ games

in front of New York in the National League East race. The Mets also won Tuesday night, beating the Houston Astros 4-2 for the second straight time.

Elsewhere, the Cincinnati Reds moved to an 8½-game advantage in the West over Houston by stopping the Montreal Expos 5-3; the Atlanta Braves trimmed the Philadelphia Phillies 11-7; the Chicago Cubs defeated the San Diego Padres 4-3 and the Los Angeles Dodgers nipped the St. Louis Cardinals 1-0.

Briles, winning his 12th game in 17 decisions this year, retired the first 20 Giants before Henderson ripped one off Stargell's glove. It extended Henderson's hitting streak to 18 games.

"It was hit real well, but in my own mind I should have caught it," said Stargell, who doubled in the game's only run in the first. "There was just no time to stick the glove up. It was one of those things. I didn't talk to Briles about it—what could I say?"

Second baseman Dave Cash and shortstop Jackie Hernandez earlier made some great plays to steal potential San Francisco hits. Then Rennie Stenett made a leaping catch in left field off Bobby Bonds' bat for the final out.

Jim Beauchamp came through with his second game-winning hit in as many nights for New York.

"I can't expect this to go on like this—but at least I'm contributing for a change," said Beauchamp, who drove in all four Met runs Tuesday night, including two with a single in the eighth inning that decided it.

Beauchamp's big night helped New York ace Tom Seaver win his 15th game while outdueling Dave Roberts. Seaver's complete game was the 100th of his career.

Johnny Bench, Pete Rose and Bill Plummer slugged home runs to power Cincinnati past Montreal, sparking elation from Reds Manager Sparky Anderson.

"We are in a position where we can win the National League West pennant by ourselves now," said Anderson.

"We're 10 games up in the loss column and that's all I'm worried about. I'm not worried about the other column."

Jim Brezale hit a three-run homer with two out in the ninth inning as Atlanta rallied for seven runs after two out to beat Philadelphia.

"We haven't scored that many runs in a week," laughed Atlanta Manager Edie Matthews.

Ferguson Jenkins fashioned a six-hitter, pitching Chicago over San Diego. The right-hander hasn't lost to the Padres in 11 lifetime decisions.

Al Downing scattered nine hits and recorded his third shutout this season while leading Los Angeles over St. Louis.

The Cardinals' Lou Brock stole his 50th base of the season in the sixth inning to tie a major league record set by Ty Cobb of 50 or more steals a year for eight years.

Lightweight Wins Crown At Trapshoot

VANDALIA, Ohio (AP) — Bob Mieczkowski of Wintersville, Ohio, the new Junior Champion of Champions in trapshooting, has to be extra careful on the trap line when it's windy.

In the past a strong wind has blown him off of his position.

A handsome blond 16-year-old, Bob, who broke 100 straight during the special race for state champions at the 73rd Grand American Tournament to top all other junior champions, claims he is 5-foot-4 and weighs 115 pounds.

But his father John is quick to add, "If he wears lead shoes."

The Wintersville High School junior, who started shooting four years ago, is far from an unknown in the fields where shooters gather. He has been named for the last two years to the Junior All-America selected by trap historian Jimmy Robinson.

Earlier this year at the Southern Zone shoot in Winchester, Va., he broke 100 straight in doubles, the first junior shooter in the history of the sport to reach that mark.

PP&K Registration Starts Thursday At Rod Bell Ford

Registration for the annual Punt, Pass and Kick Competition will begin Thursday in the showroom of Rod Bell Motor Sales Co., 596 N. Court St.

Jim Houseman, president of the dealership, has appointed Ed Warning as competition director for 1972 with the Local PP&K competition to be held on Sept. 30.

All boys in the area ages 8-13 are eligible to register and take part in the contest.

There is no charge for the competition and a boy needs a parent or guardian with him at the registration spot.

First, second and third place trophies will be awarded to boys in each of the six age groups or a total of 18 trophies in all. The boys in the contest will be competing against boys in their own age group.

First place winners in each group will go on to the zone competition and from there the top winners go on up the ladder through district, area, division and national finals.

The national finals will be held in Dallas, Texas, at the Pro Bowl game, Jan. 21. Finalists get an all-expense-paid trip to Dallas from themselves and their parents, special tour of Dallas, a banquet of champions celebration, and a chance to meet top players and coaches in professional football.

Each boy upon registering will receive a free PP&K Tips book. The 1972 edition of this book will have tips from stars like Dave Lewis, Roger Staubach, and Garo Yepremian and all-round suggestions from coaches Don Shula and Tom Landry.

PP&K registrations will close at Rod Bell's on Sept. 29.

Chargers Face Tough Schedule

By LEE MARGULIES
Associated Press Sports Writer
SAN DIEGO (AP) — After a trading blitz by Coach Harland Svare, the San Diego Chargers are the strongest and best balanced team they've been in years and loom as a potent challenger for the title in the American Football Conference West.

Yet the schedule they face is foreboding.

On successive weekends in October the Chargers meet Oakland, Baltimore, Miami, Detroit and Kansas City. Then they start November off against the world champion Dallas Cowboys. Other opponents include Cleveland and San Francisco.

But the Chargers of 1972 are not the Chargers of 1971, whose 6-8 record included losses to Pittsburgh, Houston and Denver, Svare has seen to that with his trading.

The 41-year-old coach who served as San Diego's general manager until Sid Gillman resigned last year has made 18 trades since taking the helm.

The Charger offense led the AFC in gaining yardage last year and should be even better this season now that Svare has added the running power of ex-Cowboy Duane Thomas and ex-Cardinal Cid Edwards to the outstanding passing ability of quarterback John Hadl. Thomas, however, has yet to report for work.

And the defense, third worst in the NFL last season, received a complete overhaul by a former linebacker and defensive coach.

The Chargers boast a new front four featuring ex-New York "Deacon" Jones and ex-Packer Lionel Aldridge at ends. Jones, 33, is a former all-pro who was injured last season.

Linebackers Bob Babich and player-coach Rick Redman have been joined by ex-Eagle Tim Rossovich and ex-Patriot Ed Philpot. However, an injury may sideline Rossovich for the season. And while the defensive backfield remains intact from last year, it is reported much improved under the guidance of rookie assistant coach and former all-pro Willie Wood.

At 32, quarterback Hadl is coming off the finest of his 10 years as a pro. Last year Hadl led all NFL passers in attempts with 431, completions with 233, yards gained with 3,075 and touchdowns with 21.

But Hadl probably won't be passing as much this year under the ball-control emphasis stressed by new offensive coach Bob Schnelker, for seven years an assistant at Green Bay. And he shouldn't have to with Thomas, Edwards and Mike Garrett in the backfield.

When he does, however, he won't be hurting for targets. Gary Garrison in six pro seasons has never caught fewer than 40 passes and has averaged better than 20 yards per catch in each of the last four years.

Ex-Cardinal Dave Williams will likely alternate with Charger veteran Jerry LeVias at the other wide receiver spot. They'll be backed up by Chuck Dicus.

In addition, the Charger offense has an all-conference guard in Walt Sweeney and an able, experienced tight-end in Pettis Norman.

And there is confidence and high hope on the team despite the fearsome schedule.

Pollution Cleanup Cost; Jobs Or Inflation?

By STAN BENJAMIN
Associated Press Writer
MARIETTA, Ohio (AP) — A future national dilemma over pollution costs was played out in miniature last year in Marietta.

The dilemma is posed in a 332-page report by economists who told the government last March that the cost of ending pollution is a choice of higher unemployment or higher prices. "It is very difficult to escape the conclusion," they wrote, "that either prices must rise by an additional one-quarter per cent per year throughout the decade...or the rate of unemployment must be as much as one-quarter per cent higher."

They predicted that when the environment presents its cleaning bill, the government will sacrifice price stability to save jobs.

In Marietta, however, economic theory was upstaged by what has been called the Showdown at Pollution Gulch.

The showdown was already brewing when William D. Ruckelshaus pinned on his sheriff's badge as administrator of the nation's new Environmental Protection Agency, on Dec. 2, 1970.

A federal-state air pollution conference had been trying since 1967 to get Union Carbide Corp. to eliminate the smoke and sulfur oxides pouring from its ferro-alloys plant at Marietta.

The company refused to provide information for the conference or allow inspections and boycotted a second round held in 1969.

Nevertheless, the conference adopted a timetable for Carbide to reduce its pollution, starting with a 30 per cent cut in sulfur oxides from its power plant by Oct. 20, 1970, and aiming for full abatement by April 1972.

When Ruckelshaus took office, Carbide was six weeks overdue on its first deadline.

Less than a week later the company proposed a new abatement schedule to be completed almost three years later than the conference recommended.

Ruckelshaus reviewed it for a month, then replied that Carbide's plan was "not acceptable" and the original deadlines must be met.

"The air pollution conditions in the Parkersburg (W.Va.) Marietta area are critical," he wrote. "The Union Carbide plant is the major source of discharges...satisfactory progress has not been made."

He told Carbide to buy and burn low-sulfur coal in its power plant to meet the earliest deadlines.

Carbide's first reply, in a public statement, seemed to be surrender: The company was buying or diverting from its own mines low-sulfur coal.

Four days later, however, company vice president William M. Kelly told Ruckelshaus that Carbide could not obtain enough low-sulfur coal to meet further deadlines without shutting down part of its plant and laying off as many as 625 workers.

Consumer advocate Ralph Nader quickly charged Carbide with "economic and environmental blackmail."

"We aren't blackmailing anybody," said Philip Haffard, Carbide's director of environmental affairs.

He said Ruckelshaus' demands would cost $5 million to $7 million a year and "that kind of money has to be given serious economic consideration."

But Carbide had earned $186 million—$3.05 per share—in 1969, and Haffard admitted it was "a question, perhaps, of priorities."

Carbide eventually found enough low-sulfur coal after all, stopped talking about layoffs, and began pouring money into antipollution devices not only at Marietta but also at its plant in

Alloy, W.Va., near Charleston. Today, Carbide claims to be "world leaders in cleaning up the air" although a company publication admits, "We had not planned to win these honors quite so soon."

In economic terms, the Showdown at Pollution Gulch made Union Carbide "internalize" its antipollution costs. Fred Charles, plant manager at Marietta, says coal costs have doubled, increasing overall plant operating costs by more than 10 per cent.

By 1975, he says, the plant will have installed some $20 million worth of antipollution equipment that will add $2 mi-lions to the plant's annual operating costs. Charles said the antipollution costs, coupled with "a soft world market and import competition," has left his Marietta plant barely profitable.

Both Charles and Case said one long-range option was for ferro-alloy production to move abroad, closer to sources of ore. But the heavy investments seem to mean Carbide is staying in Marietta and Alloy.

In those circumstances, what can a plant manager do?

"We'll have to somehow just survive until the regulations we have been facing up to are being complied with by everybody else and we become more competitive," Charles said.

And then? The prices will have to rise. So the showdown is over and the dilemma, at least in Marietta, is resolved.

Pollution Cleanup Cost; Jobs Or Inflation?

18 The Circleville Herald, Wed. Aug. 23, 1972
Circleville, Ohio

By STAN BENJAMIN
Associated Press Writer

MARIETTA, Ohio (AP) — A future national dilemma over pollution costs was played out in miniature last year in Marietta.

The dilemma is posed in a 332-page report by economists who told the government last March that the cost of ending pollution is a choice of higher unemployment or higher prices.

"It is very difficult to escape the conclusion," they wrote, "that either prices must rise by an additional one-quarter per cent per year throughout the decade, or the rate of unemployment must be as much as one-quarter per cent higher."

They predicted that when the environment presents its cleaning bill, the government will sacrifice price stability to save jobs.

In Marietta, however, economic theory was upstaged by what has been called the Showdown at Pollution Gulch.

The showdown was already brewing when William D. Ruckelshaus pinned on his sheriff's badge as administrator of the nation's new Environmental Protection Agency, on Dec. 2, 1970.

A federal-state air pollution conference had been trying since 1967 to get Union Carbide Corp. to eliminate the smoke and sulfur oxides pouring from its ferro-alloys plant at Marietta.

The company refused to provide information for the conference or allow inspections and boycotted a second round held in 1969.

Nevertheless, the conference adopted a timetable for Carbide to reduce its pollution, starting with a 30 per cent cut in sulfur oxides from its power plant by Oct. 20, 1970, and aiming for full abatement by April 1972.

When Ruckelshaus took office, Carbide was six weeks overdue on its first deadline.

Less than a week later the company proposed a new abatement schedule to be completed almost three years later than the conference recommended.

Ruckelshaus reviewed it for a month, then replied that Carbide's plan was "not acceptable" and the original deadlines must be met.

"The air pollution conditions in the Parkersburg (W.Va.) Marietta area are critical," he wrote. "The Union Carbide plant is the major source of discharges, satisfactory progress has not been made."

He told Carbide to buy and burn low-sulfur coal in its power plant to meet the earliest deadlines.

Carbide's first reply, in a public statement, seemed to be surrender: The company was buying or diverting from its own mines low-sulfur coal.

Four days later, however, company vice president William M. Kelly told Ruckelshaus that Carbide could not obtain enough low-sulfur coal to meet further deadlines without shutting down part of its plant and laying off as many as 625 workers.

Consumer advocate Ralph Nader quickly charged Carbide with "economic and environmental blackmail."

"We aren't blackmailing anybody," said Philip Huffard, Carbide's director of environmental affairs.

He said Ruckelshaus' demands would cost $5 million to $7 million a year and "that kind of money has to be given serious economic consideration."

But Carbide had earned $186 million—$3.05 per share—in 1969, and Huffard admitted it was "a question, perhaps, of priorities."

Carbide eventually found enough low-sulfur coal after all, stopped talking about layoffs, and began pouring money into antipollution devices not only at Marietta but also at its plant in

Alloy, W.Va., near Charleston. Today, Carbide claims to be "world leaders in cleaning up the air" although a company publication admits, "We had not planned to win these honors quite so soon."

In economic terms, the Showdown at Pollution Gulch made Union Carbide "internalize" its antipollution costs.

Fred Charles, plant manager at Marietta, says coal costs have doubled, increasing overall plant operating costs by more than 10 per cent.

By 1975, he says, the plant will have installed some $20 million worth of antipollution equipment that will add $2 million to the plant's annual operating costs.

Charles said the antipollution costs, coupled with "a soft world market and import competition," has left his Marietta plant barely profitable.

Both Charles and Case said one long-range option was for ferro-alloy production to move abroad, closer to sources of ore. But the heavy investments seem to mean Carbide is staying in Marietta and Alloy.

In those circumstances, what can a plant manager do?

"We'll have to somehow just survive until the regulations we have been facing up to are being complied with by everybody else and we become more competitive," Charles said.

And then? The prices will have to rise. So the showdown is over and the dilemma, at least in Marietta, is resolved.

Council Requires 'Impact Statements'

SEATTLE (AP) — The King County Council, which represents most of the Seattle metropolitan area, has adopted regulations requiring that "social impact statements" be prepared on all future county capital improvements projects of over $100,000.

The ordinance requires that the Department of Planning spell out in the statement the nature of the population to be served, the extent of the service planned, and the social and economic impact on the entire improvements.
